ARGUMENT.

ACT I.—Henry “the Fowler,” King of Germany, has come to Antwerp to summon his lieges against the Hungarians, who threaten the eastern frontier; he finds the chiefs divided and without a leader—Gottfried, the young son of the late Duke having mysteriously disappeared, and Frederick Telramund, in virtue of his wife's royal descent, claiming the sovereignty of Brabant. Telramund openly accuses Elsa (Gottfried's sister) of having murdered her brother to win the crown for herself; Elsa is summoned to appear and answer the charge; the King decrees that her cause shall be submitted to ordeal of battle between Telramund and any champion Elsa may choose to defend her. She describes a Knight whom she has seen in a vision, and conjures him to fight for her. After repeated appeals, a skiff, drawn by a swan, is seen to approach the shore; in it is Lohengrin, Elsa's chosen Knight, who accepts Telramund's challenge. Before they fight, Lohengrin betrothes himself to Elsa, first claiming her solemn promise never to question him as to his name or race, nor whence he came to her; Telramund is overcome in the combat and stripped of lands and honours.

ACT II.—Telramund and Ortrud (his wife) are watching outside the Palace, which resounds with mirth and revelry; they are determined yet to compass the ruin of Elsa and Lohengrin, and be reinstated in their former rank. Elsa appears on the balcony, and to her Ortrud makes a piteous appeal, which so effectually moves Elsa to compassion, that she promises to obtain the reprieve of Telramund's sentence. She offers to shelter Ortrud for the night, who amid false protestations of gratitude, affects concern for the uncertainty of Elsa's future happiness, and contrives to insinuate the first germs of suspicion in Elsa's mind. They enter the abode of Elsa. The retainers and vassals assemble to form the bridal procession. Ortrud appears in the train of Elsa's ladies; arrived at the steps of the Minster, she cannot restrain her haughty temper, and disputes Elsa's right of precedence; in the midst of the ensuing commotion the King and Lohengrin enter. Lohengrin reproves his bride for holding converse with the evil-minded woman; they are proceeding to the church when Telramund interposes and accuses Lohengrin of sorcery, alleging the strange manner of his coming amongst them, and the mystery in which his name and rank are shrouded, in support of the declaration. The faith of the King and his Knights in Lohengrin however remains unshaken: doubts for a moment overwhelm Elsa, but she casts them aside; the train finally enters the church and they are united.

ACT III.—Elsa and Lohengrin are conducted to the bridal chamber by a train of Knights and Ladies, and for the first time are alone; doubt and suspicion by this time having taken complete possession of Elsa's mind, she questions her husband with growing vehemence, unmindful of his warnings that her doubts must end their happiness, for that if she insist, to her he must reveal his secret. When their altercation is at its height, a murderous attempt is made on Lohengrin's life by Telramund and four of his followers. Elsa, quick to perceive their intent, hands Lohengrin his sword, who strikes Telramund dead with a single blow. He then places Elsa in the care of her Ladies, charging them to lead her into the presence of the King. Before the King he meets her once more and reveals himself to be the son of Percival, and a Knight of the Holy Grail; being known, he is now bound to return to its mysterious guardianship. As he speaks, the swan, leading the skiff, appears again on the river, and to Elsa's unspeakable grief he bids her an eternal farewell. Before he steps into the skiff he disenchants the swan, who is no other than Gottfried, transformed by Ortrud's sorcery, and who now takes rightful possession of his Dukedom.

The musical score consists of six staves. The top two staves are for voices (Soprano and Alto/Tenor), the third is for Bass, and the bottom three are for piano. The piano part features sustained notes and chords. The vocal parts have lyrics in English and German, with some words underlined. The music is in common time, with a key signature of four sharps.

THIRD SCENE.

(Here the skiff, drawn by the sian, reaches the shore in the centre at the back of the stage; Lohengrin, in a silver coat of mail, with a shining helmet, his shield at his back, a little golden horn at his side, stands within it, leaning on his sword. Frederick gazes on Lohengrin in speechless amazement. Ortrud, who during the preceding had preserved a cold and haughty bearing, is seized by terrible consternation at the sight of the swan. All deferentially bare their heads.)

Vie - to - ry and ho - nour be thy va - lour's meed! Thy glo - rious Heil, König Heinrich! Se - gen-völl mög' Gott bei dei - nem Schwerte stehn! Ruhmreich und". The music consists of two staves: a soprano staff in G major and a basso continuo staff in G major. The musical score consists of ten staves of music. The first four staves are in common time, treble clef, and G major. The first staff features a forte dynamic (f) and a 3/4 time signature. The second staff includes a Trombone part. The third staff has a Pedal (Ped.) instruction. The fourth staff includes a Trombone part and a bassoon part. The fifth staff is in common time, treble clef, and G major. The sixth staff includes a Trombone part and a bassoon part. The seventh staff is in common time, treble clef, and G major. The eighth staff includes a Trombone part and a bassoon part. The ninth staff is in common time, treble clef, and G major. The tenth staff is in common time, treble clef, and G major. The score includes lyrics in parentheses: "(First stroke.) (Second stroke.) Cello & Basses.", "(Lohengrin and *Frederick step into the circle.) (They advance their shields and draw.)", "(Third stroke.) Hns., Bass. & Basses.", "(They begin to fight, Lohengrin attacks.)", "Vivo.", and "(Here Lohengrin Tutti.)". The score concludes with a page number and publisher information at the bottom.

The musical score consists of six staves. The top two staves are for voices (Soprano and Alto/Tenor), the third is for Bassoon and Horn (Hns. & Bsn.), and the bottom three are for strings (Violin, Viola, Cello/Bass). The vocal parts sing in German, with lyrics provided below each line. The orchestra parts provide harmonic support, with the bassoon and horn playing sustained notes in the third staff and the strings providing rhythmic patterns in the bottom three staves. The score is set in common time, with various dynamics and performance instructions like 'espressivo.' and 'f' (forte).

The musical score consists of six staves of music. The top four staves are for voices (Soprano, Alto, Tenor, Bass) and the bottom two are for the orchestra (String section). The vocal parts sing in unison, repeating the phrase 'great deeds' three times, followed by 'this' and 'ver -'. The orchestra provides harmonic support with sustained notes and rhythmic patterns. The vocal entries correspond to the lyrics provided in the text above.

The musical score consists of six staves. The top four staves are vocal parts (Soprano, Alto, Tenor, Bass) with lyrics in German. The bottom two staves are for the piano, indicated by a treble clef and bass clef. Measure 177 begins with a forte dynamic (f). The vocal parts sing "grate - ful, why . . . art thou di - vi - ded? why art thou ret - tet, weh' . . ." followed by a repeat sign. The piano accompaniment features eighth-note chords. Measures 178-180 show the vocal parts repeating the phrase "see her heart di - vi - ded!" and "darf ich sie ge - wah - ren!". Measures 181-183 continue with the same pattern. Measure 184 begins with a forte dynamic (f) and the vocal parts sing "trust, we trust him past all doubt," followed by a piano dynamic (p). The score concludes with a piano section featuring eighth-note chords and a dynamic marking of "molto cresc. f dim. p". The piano part includes markings "Ped.", "*", and "Ped." under the first three measures of the piano section.

The musical score consists of six staves. The top two staves are for voices (Soprano and Alto/Tenor), the middle two are for piano (right hand and left hand/bass), and the bottom two are for piano (right hand and left hand/bass). The vocal parts have lyrics in German. The piano parts include dynamic markings like 'p', 'f', 'molto.', and 'Ped.' (pedal). The score is set in common time with a key signature of four sharps. The vocal parts begin with 'die!', 'In pi - ty turn, in pi - ty turn! leave . . .', and 'nicht! Verlass' mich nicht, Ver - lass' mich nicht! Ach'. The piano parts provide harmonic support with various chords and bass lines. The vocal parts continue with 'I!', 'Ah, my love, thou'rt trijt . . . not ih - more', 'Pein! Mich, wie dich tar blic -', 'gone!', 'low!', and 'low!'. The piano parts then transition to a section with 'ere', 'x o', and 'me not, to die, . . . to die'. This is followed by a series of repeated chords in the piano parts with lyrics 'ver - lass', 'lone her', 'than I!', 'be!', 'ry!', 'be!', 'No Wo', 'bliss jän', 're den', 'f z :', 'No Wo', 'bliss jän', 're den', 'f z :', 'No Wo', 'bliss jän', 're den', 'f z :'. The vocal parts then sing 'scendo molto. f z : Ped.' and 'Sra.'.

This musical score page from Wagner's "Lohengrin" features five staves of music. The top two staves are for voices (Soprano and Alto/Tenor), the third is for Bass, and the bottom two are for the piano. The vocal parts have lyrics in German. The piano part includes dynamic markings like 'più f' and 'Ped.' (pedal). The score is set in 2/4 time with a key signature of four sharps. The vocal parts sing in unison at the beginning, followed by three repetitions of a phrase. The piano part provides harmonic support with sustained notes and rhythmic patterns. The vocal parts sing again in unison, followed by another repetition of the phrase. The piano part ends with a forte dynamic and a pedal marking. The lyrics describe a lone figure, fate, and a promise or oath.
