ARGUMENT.

MARITANA, a handsome Gitana, whilst singing to a crowd of people in a square in Madrid, attracts the admiration of the KING. DON JOSE, an unscrupulous courtier, observing this, determines to satisfy the KING's whim, and then to betray him to the QUEEN, with whom he is bold enough to be madly in love.

An impetuous spendthrift DON CÆSAR DE BAZAN, arrives upon the scene, and in order to protect a poor boy named LAZARILLO from arrest, challenges the CAPTAIN OF THE GUARD, an action which, by a recent edict of the KING, entails death by hanging. He is arrested, and imprisoned, but by DON JOSE's influence his sentence is changed to the more soldier-like death of being shot, on condition that he marries a veiled lady; this he consents to do. After the ceremony, he is led away to the fortress to be shot. DON JOSE conveys the veiled wife, who is none other than MARITANA, to the palace of the MARQUIS MONTEFIORI, where the KING is introduced to her as the COUNT DE BAZAN, whom she has married. Unfortunately for DON JOSE's scheme, the real COUNT was not shot dead, as the bullets had been withdrawn from the guns by LAZARILLO, whilst the Soldiers were drinking at the wedding feast, and he now appears, dressed as a monk, and searches the saloons for his wife. DON JOSE persuades the MARCHIONESS to play the part of the veiled lady, but the COUNT discovers the imposture, and DON JOSE is compelled to have him re-arrested to prevent his meeting MARITANA, who is conveyed by his orders to the Villa d'Aranjuez. Here the KING pursues her with his unwelcome attentions, but she remains true to DON CÆSAR; the latter having escaped from prison, forces his way into the room, just as MARITANA leaves the KING. In the altercation which ensues, the KING, whom DON CÆSAR recognises, says he is the COUNT DE BAZAN, and so DON CÆSAR assumes the character of the KING, and learns for the first time that a pardon had been sent on the night of his condemnation; this pardon was intercepted by DON JOSE. The KING, receiving a message from the QUEEN, departs, giving orders to LIZARILLO for the re-arrest of the unfortunate COUNT CÆSAR, who, risking all peril, sees MARITANA, and proves that he is the man to whom she was so mysteriously wedded. He then climbs over the wall of the villa into the Royal gardens adjoining, intending to beg the QUEEN's help, but arrives just in time to kill DON JOSE, who is pressing his suit upon the indignant QUEEN. He returns to the villa to find the KING there again, who, on hearing of his loyal bravery, restores to him his bride, and makes him Governor of Valencia.

The Scene is laid in Madrid.

MAR.—(to the KING.) Good signor, havn't you a single maravédi at the bottom of your purse? it might better requite a poor singer than those forlorn looks. (The KING gives her money, then exits hastily.) A quadruple of gold! I can scarcely believe I am not dreaming again.

DON J.—You have received a good offering this morning, eh, my little siren?

MAR.—Yes, a golden quadruple! He must be some very rich man. (Looking after the KING.)

DON J.—Very; Don Rafael d'Arpinas, the most opulent gentleman in Spain. (Aside.) Your Majesty's secret is worth possessing. I shall improve my acquaintance with this handsome Gitana; her star is in the ascendant. So, my little mountain fairy, what song will you sing me, for the fellow to that golden piece which glitters still in your pretty hand?

MAR.—Sing? Anything, signor—what shall it be? DON J.—Let me recollect. Oh, the legend which you warbled to the Queen yesterday; her Majesty stopped her carriage to listen to you, I was told.

MAR.—That is no more than truth, signor.

DON J.—It must have been an interesting ditty.

MAR.—A mere romance, popular in Madrid, said often to have been heard at midnight in some old ruined palace of the Moorish kings, far over the mountain yonder; they call it "The Harp in the Air."

DON J.—By all means, sing it.

MAR.—Willingly, signor; but I must first summon my attendant spirits (beckoning forward the Gipsies for Chorus.)

This section of the musical score consists of four staves. The top three staves are vocal parts: Soprano (C-clef), Tenor (C-clef), and Bass (C-clef). The fourth staff is for the piano (F-clef). The vocal parts sing a simple melody of eighth and sixteenth notes, while the piano provides harmonic support with sustained notes and a tremolo effect. The key signature is B-flat major (two flats), and the time signature is common time (indicated by a '4'). The vocal parts repeat the phrase "An - gels, that a - round us ho - ver, Guard us till the close of day;" three times. The piano part continues to provide harmonic support throughout the section.

This section of the musical score continues the vocal and piano parts from the previous section. The vocal parts repeat the same phrase "An - gels, that a - round us ho - ver, Guard us till the close of day;" three more times. The piano part maintains its harmonic function, providing a steady harmonic base for the voices.

This section of the musical score concludes the vocal and piano parts. The vocal parts sing the final phrase "An - gels, that a - round us ho - ver, Guard us" once more. The piano part ends with a final chord. The entire section is enclosed in a brace, indicating it is a single continuous section of the piece.

DON J.—(aside). The little vain coquette.

MAR.—You laugh at my folly, signor?

DON J.—Not in the least! What better to command wealth than such a passport of beauty?

MAR.—Ah, signor, now indeed I know you are jesting with me! (Cry without of "The Queen!")

MAR.—Listen! There's the Queen passing through the grand square, if I could only attract her notice again! Adieu, signor, ambitious as I am I can still remember to be grateful.

[Exit. Singing "Of fairy wand," &c., l.

DON J.—Au revoir, ma belle Maritana! Yes, yes, your aspiring dreams will come to pass, since, through your influence over the heart of the King, Don José looks to realize his own over that of the neglected Queen. Once persuaded of her husband's infidelity, might not the incensed wife be induced to look, even from her throne, for an object worthy of assisting her just revenge? then, Don José—yes, yes, Maritana, your dreams will come to pass, and speedily!

(Noise.) Ah! whom have we here?

Enter DON CESAR, from an Hotel of somewhat humble description, evidently a little inebriated.

DON C.—Miserable knaves! Why, they cheat at cards without conscience, as if they were privileged, like us nobles of Madrid. Oh, if it were no dishonour to my sword to chastise such canaille! Robbed, plundered of my last maravédi! I shall sup upon cold air to-night, and sleep—where I shall have the whole blue expanse above for a canopy! Ha, ha, ha!

DON J.—Am I mistaken? No, it is Don Caesar de Bazan!

DON C.—Don José de Santarem?

DON J.—The same. It is long since we met, Don Caesar; you have been some time absent from Madrid?

DON C.—On my travels.

DON J.—They say travel changes a man (regarding him.)

DON C.—And his apparel! (Laughing.) Ha, ha, ha!

DON J.—Your noble father left you a high name, and a brilliant inheritance.

DON C.—The name I still bear; the inheritance benefits mankind.

DON J.—You had numerous followers.

DON C.—So I have still—creditors Go wherever I may, they are sure to follow me; and as I am very fond of change, by my valour, but I give them some trouble to run after me. Ha, ha, ha!

DON J.—And what happy event has restored you to your native city?

DON C.—The sweet, but delusive hope, that my creditors were all dead. Alas! creditors never die. But, tell me, what news here? Drink they the same, and fight as many duels as formerly?

DON J.—Duels have become rare in Madrid since the edict of the King.

DON C.—What edict?

DON J.—One, which decrees that all who fight with the sword, shall be shot; except the duel take place during Holy-week, then the survivor is condemn'd to be—

DON C.—What?

DON J.—Hanged.

DON C.—Um! If I mistake not, Holy-week commenced to-day.

DON J.—Exactly so.

LAZ.—Why did you prevent me drowning myself? I wish to die.

DON C.—Eh! Die at your age? Drown yourself! you cannot have many creditors, surely?

LAZ.—No, signor; but I am apprenticed to a stern master—an armourer—who, under pretence that the corslets were not kept bright, beat me again to-day.

DON C.—Again! Hath he beaten thee ere now?

LAZ.—Yes, signor, frequently; till I can no longer endure it. I prefer death. (Terrified.) Ah! they come to arrest me.

DON C.—(opposing himself). Fear nothing. I'll interpose.

LAZ.—Alas! that captain will not hear of pity.

A musical score for voice and piano. The score consists of five staves. The top staff is soprano, followed by two piano staves, then bass, then another piano staff. The vocal parts are in common time, treble clef, and major key (F major). The piano parts are in common time, bass clef, and major key (F major). The vocal part begins with "be;" and continues with "Fare-well, my gal-lant". The piano parts provide harmonic support with sustained notes and chords. The vocal part repeats "Fare-well, my gal-lant" and then continues with "Cap-tain, I told you how'twould be; Fare-well, my gal-lant Cap-tain, I". This pattern repeats. The vocal part then continues with "told you how'twould be; Fare-well, my gal-lant Cap-tain, I told you how'twould be; You'll not for-get the les-son due to me, You'll". This pattern repeats. The vocal part concludes with "not for-get the les-son due to me; Fare-well, my".

This section of the musical score consists of three staves. The top staff is for the soprano voice, featuring lyrics in a cursive font. The middle staff is for the piano or harp, showing a harmonic progression with chords. The bottom staff is for the bassoon, providing harmonic support. The key signature is A major (three sharps), and the time signature is common time.

This section continues the musical score from the previous page. It features a repeat sign with a 'C' above it, indicating a return to a previous section. The piano/harp part continues with a steady harmonic base. The bassoon part is present, contributing to the overall texture. The key signature remains A major.

A handwritten musical score for a single voice, likely a soprano or alto, consisting of ten staves of music. The music is in G major (indicated by a G with a sharp sign) and 2/4 time. The lyrics are written below each staff. The score begins with a dotted half note followed by an eighth note, then a quarter note, another quarter note, and a dotted half note. This pattern repeats three times. The lyrics are: "mor - - row pay, to - mor - - row pay, to -". The second staff continues with a dotted half note followed by an eighth note, then a quarter note, another quarter note, and a dotted half note. The lyrics are: "no - - bly - pay, ig - no - - bly pay, ig -". The third staff begins with a dotted half note followed by an eighth note, then a quarter note, another quarter note, and a dotted half note. The lyrics are: "ho - - ver round thee, a - way, I o - bey, a -". The fourth staff begins with a dotted half note followed by an eighth note, then a quarter note, another quarter note, and a dotted half note. The lyrics are: "life must sure - ly pay, must sure - ly pay, must". The fifth staff begins with a dotted half note followed by an eighth note, then a quarter note, another quarter note, and a dotted half note. The lyrics are: "way, a - way, a - - way, a - - way, a -". The sixth staff begins with a dotted half note followed by an eighth note, then a quarter note, another quarter note, and a dotted half note. The lyrics are: "no - - bly pay, ig - no - - bly pay, ig -". The seventh staff begins with a dotted half note followed by an eighth note, then a quarter note, another quarter note, and a dotted half note. The lyrics are: "no - - bly pay, ig - no - - bly pay, ig -". The eighth staff begins with a dotted half note followed by an eighth note, then a quarter note, another quarter note, and a dotted half note. The lyrics are: "no - - bly pay, ig - no - - bly pay, ig -". The ninth staff consists of six measures of sixteenth-note patterns. The tenth staff consists of six measures of eighth-note patterns.

The musical score consists of ten staves. The top five staves are for voices (Soprano, Alto, Tenor, Bass, and another Bass), each with lyrics underneath. The bottom five staves are for piano, with the right hand playing the melody and the left hand providing harmonic support. Measure numbers 1 through 10 are indicated above the staves. The key signature changes from G major (two sharps) to F# major (one sharp) at measure 10. The tempo is marked as 'Moderato'.

DON J.—I pledge my honour to see this performed, on condition—

DON C.—Condition to me! What is it?

DON J.—You must marry—

DON C.—Marry! I! what, for an hour and three-quarters? You are jesting.

DON J.—No! Quite the contrary.

DON C.—Ah! then, I see, it's my name you require?

DON J.—Perhaps—

DON C.—To elevate some antique maiden, who sighs to become a Countess—fifty years of age, no doubt?

DON J.—It is immaterial to you.

DON C.—And ugly as a gorgon, eh?

DON J.—You will never behold her.

DON C.—How! Am I to marry an invisible woman?

DON J.—Her features will be rendered invisible to you by a thick veil, which will also prevent her seeing you; but you must give your honour not even to demand her name. Will you consent to take such woman for your wedded wife?

DON C.—I will! and I give my word to ask no questions whatever. Ha, ha! And why not marry?
Mind, on condition that I am to be shot, instead of hanged!

DON J.—Agreed.

DON C.—And that I see and carouse with the brave fellows commissioned to despatch me!

DON J.—Strange request! however, be it so, a banquet shall be served, and your guards attend;
and as your costume is somewhat unbridegroomlike, you'll find apparel more suiting the occasion in wonder chamber. Please you put it on.

DON C.—Oh, by all means. Attention to costume is necessary when one becomes a bridegroom.
Ha, ha!

[Exit, L.]
DON J.—Yes, yes, ma belle Maritana, my prediction of thy advancement cometh quickly to pass—married to Don Caesar, the widow'd Countess of Garofa may approach so near the King, as to be ever fascinating his eyes and heart—but, will Maritana consent to this blindfold marriage?
I'll tell her 'tis the Queen's command.

Enter LAZARILLO, who gives a paper to DON JOSE.

DON J.—For me! (opens and reads it aside.) Um!
This is a pardon for Don Caesar! it will not suit the first minister's plans that this should arrive at present (puts it in his vest.) Boy, at the request of Don Caesar, I admit you, at once, into my service.

LAZ.—Thanks, signor, to-morrow.

DON J.—Why not to-day?

LAZ.—To-day he lives who dies, alas! for me! I cannot forsake him till—(agitated.) To-morrow, signor, I shall be as devoted to your service as I am now to his.

DON J.—As thou pleasest. Go, tell them at the hotel yonder, in my name, to serve a banquet for at least twenty, and say to the Captain of the Guard, I would speak to him in the outer room.

[Exit LAZARILLO, R.]

DON J.—It is a desperate game I am playing, but the very thought of possessing the Queen brings memory back to the happy time I first beheld and loved her.

WALTZ.

PIANO.

The sheet music consists of eight staves of musical notation for piano. The top two staves are for the treble clef (G major) and the bottom two staves are for the bass clef (C major). The first staff begins with a dynamic of  $p$ . The second staff starts with a dynamic of  $p$ . The third staff starts with a dynamic of  $f$ . The fourth staff starts with a dynamic of  $p$ . The fifth staff starts with a dynamic of  $p$ . The sixth staff starts with a dynamic of  $p$ . The seventh staff starts with a dynamic of  $f$ . The eighth staff ends with a dynamic of  $f$ .

"Maritana,"—(177)

Fortress clock strikes seven; a roll of musketry is heard in the distance; the dance stops suddenly; MARCHIONESS advances.

MARC.—Holy Madelina, what sound was that? my nerves are absolutely aspen leaves.

MARQUIS.—Sweet, my Lady Marchioness, subdue this terrific sensibility. Yonder sound, fair excellence, was a—a mere nothing; some ruffianly soldier, for drawing his sword in Holy-week, condemned (as one of my rascals informed me) to be shot, at seven o'clock.

MARC.—(with affection). Dear me, Marquis, was that all? What a noise they make about trifles. Pray continue the dance.

MARQ.—(admiringly). Amiable creature!

Enter Don José, R.

DON J.—Marquis!

MARQ.—I'm enchanted to behold—

DON J.—Suppress these raptures, Monsieur le Marquis, and listen to me. I have conducted hither your niece, whom you lost some ten years ago.

MARQ.—My niece? Impossible! I have no niece, signor.

DON J.—Oh yes, you have; when I gave you the appointment of Grand Director of the Royal Menagerie, you promised to recollect whatever I wished. Stretch your memory a little, Monsieur le Marquis. I say you have a long-lost niece.

MARQ.—Oh, certainly, Don José; now you remind me, I recollect my pretty little niece well enough. Where is the dear infant?

DON J.—Infant? Um! During ten years' absence she is wonderfully grown up, of course.

MARQ.—Certainly, she must be in such a lapse of time. Where is she? I'm all impatience. Is she handsome? like the family? Does she resemble me?

DON J.—(leading in MARITANA). Judge for yourself; here she is! Madame la Countess de Bazan. Madame—Monsieur le Marquis de Montefiori, your noble uncle.

MAR.—A Marquis my—

MARQ.—But I thought Don Cæsar de Bazan, at seven o'clock this evening, was expected to—

DON J.—Join the present party of course; yes, and this way, I perceive, he approacheth. You will apprise the Marchioness, your wife, of the return of her lovely relative. I'll follow instantly, and—(bows the Marquis up).

Enter the KING, R.

MAR.—(joyfully, then with chagrin). He! No! another.

DON J.—(presenting MARITANA to the KING). The Countess.

Bows, and goes up to the Marquis, who is explaining to the Marchioness the suggestions of Don José. The company is invited to withdraw, as if to take refreshments. Music as all exit but the King and Maritana.

KING.—Charming Maritana, my beauteous bride!

MAR.—Bride!

KING.—(with great tenderness). Oh! yes, mine. I could not live without thee. It seemeth to me, beautiful Maritana, as if love's bright genius had but created thy sweet presence to render this world an earthly paradise.

Hear me, gen-tle Ma-ri-ta-na, By the ma-gic of thy beau-ty, Hear me,

A musical score for a voice and piano. The vocal part is in soprano clef, and the piano part is in bass clef. The score consists of six staves of music with corresponding lyrics.

The lyrics are:

DON J.—(whispering). Sire, the guests return to the saloon. Withdraw, I beseech, or recognised—KING.—And Maritana?

DON J.—(whispers). Her, at the appointed hour, you'll find at the Villa d'Aranguez. Sire, they come!

KING.—I depart, remember! (gazing at MARITANA. MARITANA sighs). [Exit L.]

MAR.—(joyfully). Gone! Am I free?

DON J.—Yes, he is gone! you are free, (aside) till midnight. Go, join the festivity, and anticipate every happiness; they come to invite you.

Enter the MARQUIS, inviting MARITANA to join the dance.

MARQ.—Sweet niece, shall we electrify them with a saraband, eh!

MAR.—Dance? willingly! The departure of your dark stranger has removed a cloud from my heart; and a secret monitor whispers me, that a dearer object is not far distant, whose presence will quickly confirm every anticipated joy.

[Exit L.]

DON J.—She little dreams that other is no more! (eruptingly).

Enter DON CESAR, as a Monk.

DON C.—(touching DON JOSE, b.). Don José!

DON J.—That voice! Who art thou?

DON C.—(unmasking). Don Cesar, at your service.

DON J.—Alive!

DON C.—Yes. Some benevolent fairy, I presume, withdrew the bullets from the arquebuses. Not liking to disgrace, I won't say disappoint, my executioners, I fell; pretended to be shot; they walked away—I walked hither.

DON J.—For what purpose?

DON C.—To claim my wife.

DON J.—Your wife! Who told you your wife was here?

DON C.—(laughing). The same good fairy that withdrew the bullets from the arquebuses. Where is she?

DON J.—(pointing R.) In that room—find her out yourself.

DON C.—I will! Oh! I should know her from a thousand, if only by the softness of her small white hand.

[Exit R.]

DON J.—How to mislead him?

Enter MARQUIS.

DON J.—Ah! this creature! Where's your wife?

MARQ.—Receiving the adulations of her adoring guests, as her lovely white hand touches the trembling lute! O—h! (sighs).

DON J.—Ah! I have an appointment in my gift, Grand Master of the Aviary. Instruct the Marchioness to play a part as I direct, the appointment is yours.

MARQ.—I! Grand Master of the Royal Aviary, with a pension of—. What part is the divine Marchioness to play, Don José? Is it on the lute? She'll suspend your every faculty with a single chord!

DON J.—Bah! lute! No, no, I'll tell you. [Exit L.]

Re-enter DON CESAR, R.

DON C.—(angrily). No wife there! Like some phantom, still at every turn she eludes my approach: such is the promised but fading happiness of the profligate, when nothing remains to him but the sad memory of the past.

Enter DON JOSE.

DON J.—Lazarillo!

LAZ.—Signor. (Bowing.)

DON J.—(in an under tone). Where's the lady?

LAZ.—(points off, B.). Signor.

DON J.—Umm! You saw the cavalier who spoke to me yesterday? Did you know his features?

LAZ.—Yes signor; they are stamped on every piastre in Spain. It was the King.

DON J.—True; but mind you make no mistake; nevertheless, if your memory fail in the least, look on this likeness (gives him gold), and when he comes here to-night—

LAZ.—The King, Signor?

DON J.—(whispers). Ay, boy, the King. Mind, none else must be admitted.

LAZ.—Should any other attempt?

DON J.—Desire him, from the lattice there, to depart; if he refuse, be ready with your arquebus, and fire at him

LAZ.—I obey, Signor.

DON J.—Having no real authority for the detention of Don Caesar, he is, unfortunately, still at liberty, and in Madrid; luckily, however, his ignorance of the King's pardon will keep him out of the way for fear of a reapprehension; and the King, amused by the sparkling eyes of the Gitana, will utterly forget the beauteous Queen, that bright idol which he no longer worships, but for one sweet smile of whom Don José would how gladly perish!

Re-enter MARITANA.

MAR.—That voice!

DON J.—Ah! the Countess—

MAR.—You! Oh! do not mock me by that title.

DON J.—Nay, it is your own; but you appear uneasy.
Have I not kept my word? (Smiling.)

MAR.—(despondingly). Perfectly. I am a Countess—I reside in a costly palace. Every desire of my proud heart, save one, has come to pass.

DON J.—And that one is, your husband? (making a signal off the stage). Your cup of delight is now brimful; your husband arrives.

Enter LAZARILLO, showing in the KING.

MAR.—Husband! he? (retreats).

[DON JOSE retires with LAZARILLO.]
KING.—(detaining her). Lovely Maritana, do not fly me. Wherefore tremble? Fearst thou me?

MAR.—(sighing). Indeed, yes!

KING.—Thou art unhappy?

MAR.—(sadly). Indeed, indeed; yes!

KING.—Wherefore?

MAR.—Pardon! This strange marriage—thou, so exalted, I so humble!

KING.—(frowning). I exalted! Who hath told thee?

MAR.—That brow severe—that lofty bearing: yes, yes, I feel so high thou art, I tremble to raise to thee one inquiring look.

KING.—Courage, sweet Maritana! Were the earth at my command, I'd give thee all. Don José told me that thou wouldst fondly receive my affection.

MAR.—Don José falsely reared this delusion, haply to enrich himself with thy wealth.

KING.—Wealth! an thou wouldst possess it also, it shall flow like the golden shower of Danae into thy lap!

MAR.—I disregard affluence.

KING.—Nay, Maritana; doth it grieve thee thy husband is endowed with riches?

MAR.—Willingly would I share poverty with one who shared my heart!

KING.—(tenderly). Listen to me, beautiful Maritana, listen!

MAR.—You are my lord—I must obey.

KING.—Obey! Oh, it is too cold a word. (A shot heard). An intruder into the presence of—(checking himself). Go in till this be past; I'll follow soon, believe.

MAR.—(aside). Ah! me. Unlucky Maritana!

[Exit, R.

KING.—(looking after her). The prize is mine! At length she believes all—all.

[DON CÆSAR appears in balcony.

KING.—Ah! a man here! (stands aside to observe).

[LAZARILLO fires again without.

DON C.—That's one way of receiving a gentleman, by sending a bullet through his brains!

Enter LAZARILLO, the arquebusier in his hand.

LAZ.—Don Caesar!

[Disappears.

DON C.—(looking about). Eh? who knows me? (sees the KING). Pardon, Signor, I did not perceive you.

KING.—Why come you in at the window?

DON C.—Refused admittance at the door, the window was the only way. Egad! a man needs a stout courage to storm a fortress under such a brisk cannonade (shaking a bullet from his hat). It is but to show the tip of one's feather above yon corridor, and whizz comes a bullet at your head. Spirit of Hospitality, how are thy rights abused!

KING.—(earnestly). I am master here, and insist on knowing your motive for this intrusion.

DON C.—Well, then, since you are master of the house, I come to seek the Countess de Bazan! They say, she lives here!

KING.—The Countess? Do you know her?

DON C.—Ha, ha, ha! She's the acquaintance of ten minutes only; but if you are master here, tell me where to find her.

KING.—(indignantly). I tell! I! Are you aware, Signor, that I am—

DON C.—Who?

KING.—(in confusion). Wh—o! Don Caesar de Bazan! [Seating himself.

DON C.—(aside). Parbleu! I must chastise this impostor. [Touches his sword.

LAZ.—(appearing at the balcony). It is the King! [Aside, and disappears.

DON C.—(aside). Ha! The King! here, at this hour!

KING.—And pray Signor, who may you happen to be? Your name!

DON C.—My name! Oh, if you are Don Caesar de Bazan (putting on his hat). I am King of Spain!

KING.—(rising). You! King of—ha, ha, ha!

LAZ.—Sire, in haste, a messenger.

[Gives KING a paper.

KING.—(reading it.) Ah! from the Queen! Arrived there, at the Palace, and expecting me! just now, provoking! Boy, call thy fellows up, and order strait they thrust forth yon stranger; and if our heavy anger thou wouldest not incur, see it instant done.

[Exit.

LAZ.—(with remorse.) Sire! I will. My benefactor, Don Cæsar! I had nearly shot you just now!

DON C.—Never mind, boy. Where's that lady?

[Looking about.

LAZ.—If you mean the mysterious lady who—Ah! here she comes! Oh, Signor, beware!

DON C.—I must speak with her. Watch, let no one interrupt us!

DON CESAR. (with grief.)

Music score for 'Don Cesare. (with grief.)'. The score consists of four staves. The top staff has a bass clef, the second staff has a treble clef with a 'p' dynamic, and the third and fourth staves have a bass clef. The key signature is B-flat major (two flats). The vocal line starts with 'Oh, Ma-ri-ta - na! wild wood -' followed by a melodic line with eighth-note patterns. The lyrics continue with '- flow'r, Did they but give thee a proud - er name,..... To place thee in a king-ly bow-er, And deck thee, and deck thee....' The music features various dynamics and note values.

MARITANA.

Music score for 'Maritana.'. The score consists of four staves. The top staff has a bass clef, the second staff has a treble clef, and the third and fourth staves have a bass clef. The key signature changes to G major (no sharps or flats). The vocal line starts with 'with a gild-ed shame!' followed by 'No! Ma-ri-ta - na,'. The lyrics continue with 'though in this bow'r, Lips the most pure, shall ne - ver'. The music includes sustained notes and eighth-note patterns.

LAZ.—That step! It is the King! [Retires.
Enter the KING.—Re-enter DON CESAR, who locks
the door.

KING.—Why lock'st thou the door?

DON C.—That none else hear what now I dare to utter. Thou art my King—thou'st my dishonour sought—my wife insulted—thus I that wrong repay! [Throwing down his sword.

KING.—Intruder! What ho! who waitest?

MAR.—To death they'll drag thee! By the lattice fly!

DON C.—(to KING). Sire, an instant hear me.

KING.—(with emotion). Away, I spare thy life.

DON C.—Sire, I bear a mission.

KING.—A mission!—thou? From whom?

DON C.—Sire, from the Queen! who would save Maritana.

KING.—How! did they dare admit thee to the presence of Her Majesty?

DON C.—No, sire, they did not admit me by the portal, therefore climbed I the garden wall,

resolved to cast myself, unlooked for, at Her Majesty's feet.

KING.—(angrily). What sought thou of the Queen?
Audacious!

DON C.—To save my wife: that effort saved my King!

KING.—Thy King!

DON C.—At least, his honour! To avoid the notice of the guards, hidden behind the foliage, I heard, in converse deep, two voices, a woman's and a man's. Shall I go on?

KING.—Proceed.

DON C.—"Madam, you are betrayed," said the cavalier to the lady; "the King to-night meeteth his mistress in yonder villa."

KING.—And that traitor was—

DON C.—Don José!

KING.—And the lady?

DON C.—The Queen.

KING.—The Queen! Oh, shame!

The musical score consists of four systems of music. The top system has three staves: soprano (G clef), alto (C clef), and bass (F clef). The middle system has two staves: soprano and alto. The bottom system has two staves: soprano and bass. The piano accompaniment is on the right, indicated by a brace under the bass staff. The vocal parts sing in three-part harmony. The music is in common time, with a key signature of one sharp (F#). The vocal parts enter at different times, with the bass often providing harmonic support. The piano part features sustained notes and chords.

KING.—Unlock the door, I say, and let me forth!
 DON C.—Sire, thou wouldst arrive too late.

KING.—Too late, say'st—

DON C.—Think'st thou Don Cæsar spared the man, who, though scorned by his Queen, to whom he spoke of love, would have betrayed his King?
 No, sire, by this true hand the traitor fell. I have done my utmost to save thine honour.
 can't thou destroy mine? [Kneels.]

KING.—(much affected, and making a sign to MARI-TANA, who gives him DON CÆSAR's sword). No, Don Cæsar; and may that loyal sword which has so preserved the dignity of your King, ever defend with equal bravery thine own. Rise! I hear footsteps. Now, unlock the door.
 [DON CÆSAR unlocks the door.]

Enter LAZARILLO, OFFICERS, &c., of the KING's household.

NOBLE.—Sire, we have sought you at the request of Her Majesty—

KING.—And found us in the villa of the Count de Bazan, one of our most loyal subjects. Don Cæsar de Bazan, we appoint you Governor of Grenada.

DON C.—Valentia is also vacant, sire.

KING.—Would you prefer Valentia to Grenada?

DON C.—Valentia is one hundred leagues from Madrid, sire, and beyond the reach of my creditors.

KING.—(laughing). Well, well, Governor of Valentia, be it then.
