ARRANGED for the ORGAN by

ALEX: GUILMANT.

Cette pièce a été écrite pour Clavecin par F. Couperin, et publiée en 1722, dans son 3^e livre de Pièces pour cet instrument. En l'arrangeant pour l'orgue nous avons dû modifier en certains endroits la disposition de l'harmonie, et parfois la renforcer, l'adjonction de la partie de pédale offrant des ressources que ne possèdent ni le clavecin ni même le piano. Nous avons laissé subsister les ornements indiqués par l'auteur; l'orgue soutenant les sons, nous croyons qu'il est possible de supprimer quelques uns de ces agréments. Les nuances indiquées ne sont pas de Couperin.

Meudon, 3 Janvier 1888.

ALEX. G.

This piece was written for the Clavecin by F. Couperin, and published in 1722, in the 3rd vol. of pieces for that instrument. In the arrangement for the organ it has been necessary to modify, in certain particulars, the disposition of the harmonies, to strengthen them and to allow for the pedal part which the clavecin in common with the piano was without. We have allowed the ornaments indicated by the composer to remain; but the organ sustains its sounds, and therefore with advantage. The nuances indicated are not by Couperin.

Meudon, 3rd January 1888.

ALEX GUILMANT

Ce Concerto a été écrit par Händel pour Orgue, 1^{re} et 2^e Violon, Alto et Basses, 2 Hautbois et 2 Bassons.

Réduisant cet ouvrage pour l'Orgue seul, j'ai dû pour cette adaptation faire quelques additions dont voici la liste: 1^{re} Les notes gravées en petits caractères ne sont pas de Händel, j'ai cru devoir les ajouter pour compléter et renforcer l'harmonie; il en est de même aux endroits où l'auteur a écrit: ad libitum et pour lesquels j'ai dû écrire un certain nombre de mesures; 2^e Les termes placés entre parenthèse () ainsi que l'indication des claviers et des jeux, les liaisons — et les points ont été ajoutés pour donner plus de coloris à l'exécution.

Après le premier Allegro, la partition porte l'indication suivante: Organo ad libitum. J'ai cru utile de combler cette lacune en intercalant un Air tiré du 12^e concerto pour instruments à cordes de Händel, que j'ai transposé et arrangé pour l'Orgue.

ALEX: G.

Meudon, 3 Janvier, 1888.

This concerto was written by Handel for Organ, 1st and 2^d Violins, Viola and Bass: 2 Oboes and 2 Bassoons.

In arranging it for Organ alone, it became necessary to make certain additions.

1st The notes engraved in small characters are not in Handel's organ part, but are necessary to complete the harmony; and in place of the composer's ad libitum a certain number of bars have been inserted by way of Cadenza.

2^d The terms in parenthesis (); the indications of keyboards and stops; ties; dots &c. &c. have been inserted as necessary to the proper execution of the work.

After the first Allegro, in the score we come to Organo ad libitum. Here the Air from Handel's 12th Concerto for stringed instruments has been inserted to fill the gap, after being transposed and arranged for the Organ.

CONCERTO EN RÉ MINEUR

CONCERTO IN D MINOR

Ce Concerto en Ré mineur a été écrit par Händel pour Orgue, Violons (1^{er} 2^e et 3^e) Alto et Basses.

Réduisant cet ouvrage pour l'orgue seul, et faisant abstraction de l'orchestre, j'ai dû pour cette adaptation faire quelques additions dont voici la liste: 1^o Les notes gravées en petits caractères ne sont pas de Händel; j'ai cru devoir les ajouter pour compléter et renforcer l'harmonie. 2^o Les termes placés entre parenthèses () et les nuances, ainsi que l'indication des claviers et des jeux; les liaisons — et les points...., sauf ceux qui sont surmontés de ce signe —, ont été ajoutés pour donner plus de coloris à l'exécution. 3^o La partie d'orgue, dans l'œuvre de Händel n'étant écrite que sur deux portées, j'ai cru devoir indiquer une partie de pédale sur une troisième portée.

Je pense que le mouvement Andante du premier morceau ne doit pas être pris aussi lentement qu'il est d'usage de l'exécuter maintenant, mais plutôt avec un peu de vivacité.

Après le premier morceau, la partition porte l'indication suivante: « Organo Adagio e per una Fuga Allegro ad libitum. » J'ai cru utile de combler cette lacune en intercalant un Largo et un Chœur fugué tirés de l'oratorio Théodora que j'ai arrangés pour l'orgue.

J'ai dû aussi abréger la durée des notes finales de certains tutti afin de mettre mieux en relief le commencement des sol.

ALEX: GUILMANT.

Meudon, le 25 Septembre 1883.

This Concerto in D minor was written by Handel for Organ, 1st, 2^d and 3rd Violins, Tenor and Basses.

Having reduced this work for the Organ alone and taken away the Orchestra I have been obliged for this adaptation to make some additions of which I here give a list. 1^o The notes engraved in small type are not by Handel; I have thought proper to add them in order to complete and enforce the harmony. 2^o The terms placed between parentheses () and the expression, as well as the indication of manuals and stops; the ties — and dots....., except those which have over them this sign —, have been added in order to give the performance more colouring. 3^o The Organ part in the work of Handel being written only on two staves, I thought proper to indicate a pedal part on a third staff.

I think the Andante of the first movement ought not to be taken as slowly as performers are in the habit of playing it now, but rather a little spirited.

After the first movement the score bears the following indication « Organo Adagio e per una Fuga Allegro ad libitum. » I thought it useful to insert here a Largo and a fugued Chorus from the Oratorio Theodora which I have adapted the Organ.

I was also obliged to shorten the final notes of certain tutti in order to make the beginning of the sol more prominent.
