GENERAL PREFACE

GENERELT FORORD

The Carl Nielsen Edition is an independent project under the auspices of the Music Department of the Royal Library, launched in 1994 on the initiative of the Ministry of Culture and funded by the Ministry and the foundation Carl Nielsen og Anne Marie Carl-Nielsens Legat, with further financial support for the publication of the individual volumes from a number of other private foundations.

The edition is for both practical and scholarly use, and is based on critical editorial principles. It comprises all Carl Nielsen's finished works and completed individual pieces, and seeks as far as possible to reflect the works in the version last sanctioned by the composer. In cases where songs exist in several different arrangements by Carl Nielsen, all the versions are published.

Each work is furnished with an introduction which gives a brief account of the genesis of the work and its place in the composer's oeuvre, and a Critical Commentary including source description, editorial emendations and additions, and important alternative readings. The editorial material is published together with the music.

Works included in volumes with several independent works are also published in separate booklets. Part material is published for all the orchestral and chamber music works, and parts as well as piano score are published for the operas and the major choral works.

The edition is divided into the three main series Stage Music, Instrumental Music and Vocal Music, each further divided into volumes; within each genre the works are ordered chronologically.

Carl Nielsen Udgaven er et selvstændigt projekt under Det Kongelige Biblioteks Musikafdeling, iværksat i 1994 på Kulturministeriets foranledning og finansieret af Kulturministeriet og Carl Nielsen og Anne Marie Carl-Nielsens Legat, hvortil kommer støtte fra en række private fonde til udgivelse af de enkelte bind.

Udgaven er til såvel praktisk som videnskabelig brug, tilrettelagt efter kritisk-videnskabelige udgivesprincipper. Den omfatter samtlige Carl Nielsens afsluttede værker og enkeltsatser og søger i videst mulige omfang at afspejle værkerne i den af komponisten senest sanktionerede version. I tilfælde, hvor sange foreligger i flere forskellige arrangementer fra Carl Nielsens hånd, udgives alle versioner.

Hvert værk er forsynet med en indledning, der kort beskriver værkets tilblivelseshistorie og placerer det i den samlede produktion, samt en kritisk beretning, hvor der redegøres for kildesituationen, redaktionelle ændringer og tilføjelser og vigtige varianter. Den kritiske beretning udgives sammen med nodeteksten.

Værker, der indgår i bind med flere selvstændige værker, udgives også i separate hæfter. Til alle orkester- og kammermusikværker udgives stemmemateriale, og til operaerne og de større korværker udgives såvel stemmer som klaverpartitur.

Udgaven er opdelt i hovedserierne Scenemusik, Instrumentalmusik og Vokalmusik med tilhørende opdeling i enkeltbind; inden for hver genre er værkerne ordnet kronologisk.

Series I, Stage Music

Operas
Music for other stage works
Incidental music and arrangements

Series II, Instrumental Music

Symphonies
Other orchestral works
Concertos
Chamber music
Works for organ
Works for piano

Series III, Vocal Music

Works for soloists, choir and orchestra
Cantatas and occasional music
A cappella choral pieces
Songs and recitations with piano, songs without accompaniment
Songs arranged for vocal soloists and orchestra

Carl Nielsen's literary works are available in connection with the Edition.¹

Editorial principles

The music is reproduced with no typographical indications of editorial additions or emendations. These will be documented in the Critical Commentary. Typography, score disposition, genre names, and instrument names have been normalized in accordance with present-day practice. With a few exceptions, discussed in more detail in the Critical Commentary, the many additions and changes in Carl Nielsen's works that have been made by friends and colleagues have been removed.

Articulation, dynamics, ties and slurs, execution markings and playing instructions have been normalized on the basis of analogies between clearly parallel passages. All such completions are documented in the Critical Commentary. Obvious writing and printing errors have been tacitly corrected.

Carl Nielsen often notated horns and trumpets with key signatures. This practice has been normalized to a notation exclusively using accidentals.

Serie I, Scenemusik

Operaer
Musik til andre sceneværker
Enkelte satser i sceneværker samt arrangementer

Serie II, Instrumentalmusik

Symfonier
Andre orkesterværker
Koncerter
Kammermusik
Værker for orgel
Værker for klaver

Serie III, Vokalmusik

Værker for soli, kor og orkester
Kantater og lejlighedsmusik
Korsatser a cappella
Enstemmige sange og recitation med klaver, enstemmige sange uden akkompagnement
Enstemmige sange i arrangement for orkester

Carl Nielsens litterære arbejder foreligger udgivet i tilknytning til Udgaven.¹

Redaktionelle principper

Nodeteksten gengives uden typografisk markering af redaktionelle tilføjelser eller ændringer. Disse vil være dokumenteret i den kritiske beretning. Typografi, partitupostilling, instrument- og genrebetegnelser er normaliseret efter nutidig praksis. Med enkelte undtagelser, som der er gjort nærmere rede for i den kritiske beretning, er de mange tilføjelser og ændringer i Carl Nielsens værker, der er foretaget af venner og kolleger, fjernet.

Nodeteksten er normaliseret med hensyn til artikulation, dynamik, buer, foredragsbetegnelser og spilletekniske anvisninger således, at der er analogi mellem entydige parallelsteder. Alle sådanne kompletteringer dokumenteres i den kritiske beretning. Oplagte skrive- og trykfejl er stiltiende rettet.

Carl Nielsen noterede ofte horn og trompeter med faste fortegn. Denne praksis er normaliseret til notation udelukkende med løse fortegn.

"Muta in" in connection with the retuning of timpani and changes between two instruments (for example clarinet in A and B^b) have been tacitly normalized. This also applies to the combination of ties and slurs.

In Carl Nielsen's manuscripts the dynamic markings are sometimes rather carelessly placed, and this is also reflected in the early printed editions. This has been tacitly adjusted.

Clefs are normally given as in the main source.

"Muta in" i forbindelse med omstemning af pauker og skift mellem to instrumenter (f.eks. klarinet i A og B^b) er stiltiende normaliseret. Det samme gælder kombinationen af buer og bindebuer.

I Carl Nielsens manuskripter er de dynamiske angivelser undertiden placeret noget skødesløst, hvilket afspejler sig i de tidlige trykte udgaver. Dette er stiltiende justeret.

Nøgler gengives normalt som i hovedkilden.

Carl Nielsen had the idea of basing an opera on one of Ludvig Holberg's comedies¹ as early as the beginning of the 1890s.² But it was only after the completion of the serious opera Saul and David (1898-1901) that he began working in earnest on the plans for the Holberg opera. At this point Nielsen wanted to write something quite different, and began to work on Holberg's The Healing Spring (Kilderejzen), which was however soon shelved in favour of Masquerade.³ Nielsen himself described how his collaboration with the librettist Vilhelm Andersen⁴ arose:

"I was rather at a loss about whom I could actually get to write it, for it needed a quite special kind of humour. Then I saw Vilhelm Andersen in the student comedies at Folketeatret. That's the man, I thought, and went up to him and asked if he would write me a libretto. He was very surprised. Are you mad? he said. But when he heard it was Holberg he was to tackle, he exclaimed: Well, that's another matter. Do me a synopsis. He got it, and just a fortnight later he had finished the first act. It was a sheer pleasure for me."⁵

Carl Nielsen began working out the structure of the opera around New Year 1903-1904. In February 1904 he and Vilhelm Andersen went to the fancy dress ball in Casino to gather ideas for Act Three, and at Easter 1904 Vilhelm Andersen started work on the libretto, which was drawn up within a month in Idén om at skabe en opera over en af Ludvig Holbergs komedier¹ fik Carl Nielsen allerede i begyndelsen af 1890'erne.² Det blev dog først efter fuldførelsen af den seriøse opera Saul og David (1898-1901), at han for alvor kom i gang med planerne om en Holberg-opera. Carl Nielsen ønskede nu at skrive noget ganske andet, og han begyndte at arbejde med Holbergs Kilderejzen, som dog snart blev skrinlagt til fordel for Maskarade.³ Carl Nielsen har selv berettet om, hvordan samarbejdet med librettisten Vilhelm Andersen⁴ kom i stand:

"Jeg gik og var lidt i Bekneb med, hvem jeg egentlig skulde faa til at skrive den, for der skulde jo saadan et eget Humør til. Saa saa jeg Vilhelm Andersen i Studenterkomederne paa Folke-teatret. Det er Manden, tænkte jeg og gik op til ham og spurgte, om han vilde skrive mig en Operatekst. Han blev meget forbavset. Er De gal! sagde han. Men da han hørte, at det var Holberg, han skulde i Lag med, udbød han: – Ja, det er en anden Sag. Lav mig en Scenegang. Den fik han, og allerede fjorten Dage efter havde han første Akt færdig. Det var en ren Fornøjelse for mig."⁵

Carl Nielsen påbegyndte udarbejdelsen af scenegangen omkring nytår 1903-1904. I februar 1904 gik han og Vilhelm Andersen til karneval i Casino for at samle idéer til tredje akt, og i påsken 1904 gik Vilhelm Andersen så i gang med teksten, som blev til i løbet af blot en måned i et tæt samarbejde

1 Ludvig Holberg (1684-1754), norsk/dansk dramatiker og professor i historie. Hans komedie Mascarade blev til i 1724.

2 Carl Nielsen himself said that he had the idea for Maskarade at the beginning of the 1890s when his friend, the violinist and estate-owner Holger Møller, said that Carl Nielsen had to have a sense of humour to write music of this kind (Det Kongelige Teaters Program, vol. 34, no. 74 (1906)).

3 In his final years Carl Nielsen took up the idea of an opera based on Kilderejzen again. Vilhelm Andersen (see note 4) wrote a libretto, but Nielsen abandoned the project again, instead urging his younger colleague Finn Høffding (1899-1997) to put music to the text. In 1930-1931 Høffding composed the opera Kilderejzen, but it was not performed at the Royal Theatre until 1942.

2 Carl Nielsen har selv udtaalt, at han fik idén til Maskarade i begyndelsen af 1890erne, da hans ven violinisten og godsejeren Holger Møller sagde, at Carl Nielsen måtte have humør til at skrive musik af denne art (Det Kongelige Teaters program, 34. årg., nr. 74 (1906)).

3 I sine sidste leveår genoptog Carl Nielsen idén med en opera over Kilderejzen. Vilhelm Andersen (se note 4) skrev en libretto, men Carl Nielsen opgav dog igen projektet, idet han i stedet opfordrede sin yngre kollega, Finn Høffding (1899-1997) til at sætte musik til teksten. Høffding komponerede i 1930-1931 operaen Kilderejzen, som dog først blev opført på Det Kongelige Teater i 1942.

close collaboration between author and composer.⁶ But Nielsen had difficulties reading Vilhelm Andersen's handwriting, so he got his good friend and assistant Henrik Knudsen⁷ to make a transcript (Source Pa), which Nielsen had by the beginning of August.⁸ Yet some time was to pass before he began to set the text to music. In the autumn he completed Sleep (Søvnen),⁹ and only towards Christmas did he slowly begin to think about Masquerade again. That Carl Nielsen did not immediately plunge into the composition work is quite characteristic of his way of working – something he was quite aware of, as is evident from an autobiographical note written at the time around the creation of Masquerade:

"I work sporadically and extremely intensely. Thus I can easily be idle for several months, not because I lack musical ideas, but because of a sort of absence of the bearing undercurrent which, like Ariadne's thread, leads to a particular goal."¹⁰

In periods like this, when Carl Nielsen as it were recharged himself for the act of creation, he needed the greatest attention from those around him, and he could be very irritable until he started on the composition. This whole process can be followed closely in the letters to his wife, Anne Marie Carl-Nielsen,¹¹ who was at this time staying in Athens, where she was copying sculptures for German art museums. On 14th December 1904 he wrote despondently, complaining that he had not heard from her for several days:

"I beg you to do so for my sake and the sake of my work. I was just about to get started properly on 'The Masquerade' ... It's really very thoughtless of you – this indifference – "¹²

On Christmas Day 1904 he wrote:

"On the other hand I haven't begun on 'The Masquerade' in earnest yet; I can't just now, and either some time has to pass or I must experience a grief or a joy that can shake up what one calls the human soul."¹³ mellem forfatter og komponist.⁶ Carl Nielsen havde dog svært ved at læse Vilhelm Andersens håndskrift, hvorfor han fik sin gode ven og hjælper Henrik Knudsen⁷ til at udarbejde en afskrift (kilde Pa), som Carl Nielsen fik i hænde i begyndelsen af august.⁸ Der skulle dog gå en rum tid, før han begyndte at sætte teksten i musik. I efteråret færdiggjorde han Søvnen,⁹ og først henimod jul begyndte han så småt at tænke på Maskarade igen. At Carl Nielsen ikke straks kastede sig over kompositionen, er ganske karakteristisk for hans arbejdsform – et forhold, som han i øvrigt var sig helt bevidst, hvilket tydeligt fremgår af en selvbiografisk note skrevet i tiden omkring tilblivelsen af Maskarade:

"jeg arbejder stødvis og uhyre intensivt. Jeg kan saaledes godt drive i flere Maaneder, ikke fordi jeg mangler musikalske Ideer, men fordi der ligesom fattes den bærende Understrøm, der, paa samme Maade som Ariadne-Traaden, leder til eet bestemt Maal."¹⁰

I sådanne perioder, hvor Carl Nielsen så at sige ladede op til selve skaberakten, havde han brug for den allerstørste opmærksomhed fra sine nærmeste omgivelser, og han kunne være meget pirrelig, indtil han kom i gang med kompositionen. Hele denne proces kan tydeligt følges i brevene til hustruen, Anne Marie Carl-Nielsen,¹¹ som på denne tid opholdt sig i Athen, hvor hun kopierede skulpturer til tyske kunstmuseer. Den 14. december 1904 skrev han fortvivlet, idet han beklagede sig over ikke at have hørt fra hende i adskillige dage:

"Jeg beder Dig gjøre det af Hensyn til mig og mit Arbejde. Nu skulde jeg netop til at tage ordentlig fat paa 'Maskaraden' [...] Det er nu meget tankeløst af Dig – denne Ligegyldighed – "¹²

Juledag 1904 skrev han:

"Derimod har jeg ikke begyndt paa 'Maskaraden' for Alvor endnu, jeg kan ikke for Tiden og enten maa der gaa en Tid eller jeg maa opleve en Sorg eller Glæde som kan vende op og [ned] paa det man kalder Sjælen i Mennesket."¹³

On 5th and 6th January 1905 he wrote again to his wife:

"I am ashamed of eating the food I don't deserve, but at the same time I don't think I owe anyone any account of my idleness. Now I've given up getting 'The Masquerade' finished for next year and maybe I'll give up the whole thing. There are lots of people who would like that text and idea. Either I must prevent it by buying the text from Wilh: Andersen or get going myself, but I can't for the next few months. I feel that clearly. I am terribly disgusted with everything called art, music, literature and all that rubbish that only makes people insane and hysterical."¹⁴

Finally, around 1st February 1905, the breakthrough came: on 6th February Carl Nielsen wrote to his wife:

"The fact is, I have now got off to a good start on 'The Masquerade' – indeed, I think I have never worked as quickly and easily. I had terrible labour pains before I grew into the subject and the tone – that's something quite new for me – and it's really odd that this should give me so much more trouble, since it is an easy, flowing thing. Once, in the winter of 1889, I was sailing with the steamship 'A.C. Melchior' from Copenhagen to Aarhus. We had heavy ice on the way through the Sound, and had to break our way forward and crush the ice with constant violent run-ups at full speed. But the feeling you then had of coming out into the gentle, easy open waters of the Kattegat was completely priceless, and it is a quite similar feeling of ease and triumph I have now, 'bathing in the cascade / that's called the Ma-sque-rade'!"¹⁵

On 18th February he wrote:

"What a leap you'll see from 'Sleep' to 'The Masquerade'. The latter is now going excellently. Now and then I have a feeling that I'm not myself at all – Carl August Nielsen – but sort of an open pipe through which a stream of music flows, which gentle strong forces move in a kind of blissful oscillation. Then, believe me, it's a joy to be a musician."¹⁶

This optimism was confirmed again in a letter of 9th March to his friend Julius Röntgen:¹⁷

"For a long time [I] have been in such a working mood as never before. The text I have got for my merry opera is so funny,

Den 5. og 6. januar 1905 skriver han igen til hustruen:

"Jeg skammer mig ved at spise den Mad jeg ikke fortjener, men samtidig synes jeg ikke jeg skylder nogen noget Regnskab for min Dovenskab. Nu har jeg opgivet at faa 'Maskaraden' færdig til næste Aar og maaske opgiver jeg helt Sagen. Der er mange der gjerne vil have den Text og Idé. Enten maa jeg forhindre det ved at kjøbe Texten af Wilh: Andersen eller tage fat selv, men jeg kan ikke de første Maaneder, det kan jeg tydeligt Mærke. Jeg har en gebrækkelig Lede for alt hvad der hedder Kunst, Musik, Literatur og alt det Skidt som kun gjør Folk sindssyge og hysteriske"¹⁴

Endelig omkring den 1. februar 1905 indtrådte "forløsningen". Den 6. februar skrev Carl Nielsen til hustruen:

"Sagen er at jeg nu er kommen udmærket igang med 'Maskaraden' ja, jeg synes aldrig jeg har arbejdet saa rask og let. Jeg har haft stærke Veer inden jeg har voxet mig ind i Emnet og Tonen – det er jo noget helt nyt for mig – og det er egentlig mærkeligt at det netop skulde volde mig saa meget stærkere Bryderi som det drejer [sig] om en let, henflydende Sag. Jeg sejlede engang i Vinteren 1889 med Dampskibet 'A.C. Melchior' fra København til Aarhus. Vi havde stærk Ishindring gjennem Sundet og maatte bryde os frem og mase Isen ved bestandige hidlige Tilløb for fuld Kraft. Men den Fornemmelse man saa havde ved atter at komme ud i det linde, lette aabne Vand i Kattegat var aldeles ubetalelig og det er en ganske lignende Følelse af Lethed og Triumph jeg nu har ved at 'bade mig i den Kaskade / som hedder Ma-ska-rade'!"¹⁵

Den 18. februar hed det:

"Du skulde se et Spring fra 'Søvnen' til 'Maskaraden'. – Det gaar nu udmærket med den sidste. Engang imellem har jeg en Fornemmelse af at jeg slet ikke er mig selv, – Carl August Nielsen, – men kun ligesom et aabent Rør hvorigennem der løber en Musikstrøm som milde, stærke Kræfter bevæger i en vis salig Svingning. Saa er det lykkeligt at være Musiker, kan Du tro."¹⁶

Denne optimisme bekræftedes igen i brev af 9. marts til vennen, Julius Röntgen.¹⁷

"i lang Tid har [jeg] været i et saadant Arbejdshumør som ingensinde tidligere. Den Text som jeg har faaet til min lystige wholesome and witty that I live out a veritable feast of work from morning to evening and it is going forward so well that the first long act is almost finished in score.”¹⁸

Immediately after this letter was written, Carl Nielsen encountered a number of personal problems that halted the composition work for almost one and a half months: since 1889 he had been employed as second violinist in the Royal Orchestra, although since April 1904 he had functioned as deputy kapelmester. On 11th March 1905 he was notified that as of the next season he was to resume his duties as violinist. Carl Nielsen saw this as a demotion and reacted by proffering his resignation. At the same time he had marital problems. The combination of circumstances led to an extended break in the work of composition, which by this time had reached the finale quintet of Act One. From mid-March until the end of April he composed nothing. Around 1st April Anne Marie came home from Athens, and the couple talked things over, after which Carl Nielsen began fair-copying Act One, at the same time composing the finale quintet. But the work did not go as fast as before.¹⁹ The pencil draft (Source B) of Act One is end-dated 21st May 1905, while the fair copy (Source A) is dated only five days later, 26th May 1905. The final period was very hectic, because the Royal Theatre had made it a condition that the first act was to be in fair copy before the end of the season, if the opera was to be staged the following season.²⁰

Most of Act One was thus created in a state of blissful creative ecstasy, composed in long stretches without anything being changed or rejected along the way. A single section does however appear to have been written a little too quickly and uncritically – Henrik’s scene “We’re born into hunger”. When Carl Nielsen showed the manuscript to Thomas Laub,²¹ Laub pointed out that this passage was too much like the “romance” style they both despised. Carl Nielsen accepted the criticism and replaced what he had composed with the passage bb.1063-1103.²²

Immediately after completing the first act, Nielsen continued with Act Two, on which he had already begun before concluding the first.²³ And within less than a month he had also finished Act Two (the draft is end-dated 27th June 1905). By this time Nielsen must have realized that he was unable to manage both the composing and the fair-copying himself. He

Opera, er saa morsom, sund og vittig at jeg lever i en sand Fest af Arbejde fra Morgen til Aften og det skrider saaledes frem at den første lange Akt næsten er færdig i partitur.”¹⁸

Umiddelbart efter dette brev blev skrevet, løb Carl Nielsen ind i en række personlige problemer, som satte kompositionen i stå i hen ved halvanden måned: Siden 1889 havde han været ansat som 2. violinist ved Det Kongelige Kapel, idet han dog fra april 1904 havde fungeret som kapelmestervikar. Den 11. marts 1905 modtog han imidlertid meddelelse om, at han fra og med næste sæson skulle genoptage sit hvert som violinist. Carl Nielsen opfattede dette som en degradering og reagerede med at søge sin afsked. På samme tid havde han ægteskabelige problemer. Disse forhold i forening førte til et længere ophold i kompositionen, som på dette tidspunkt var nået til finalekvintetten i første akt. Fra midten af marts og frem til slutningen af april blev der ikke komponeret noget. Omkring den første april kom Anne Marie hjem fra Athen, og de to ægtefolk fik talt ud, hvorefter Carl Nielsen påbegyndte renskriften af første akt, samtidig med at han komponerede finalekvintetten. Men det gik ikke så hurtigt som før.¹⁹ Blyantskladden (kilde B) til første akt er sluttet 21. maj 1905, mens renskriften (kilde A) er dateret kun fem dage senere, den 26. maj 1905. Den sidste periode var meget hektisk, fordi Det Kongelige Teater havde betinget sig, at første akt skulle foreligge renskrevet før sæsonens udløb, hvis operaen skulle sættes op i den følgende sæson.²⁰

Det meste af første akt blev således til i en lykkelig skaberrus, komponeret i lange stræk, uden at der blev ændret eller kasseret noget undervejs. Et enkelt afsnit var dog tilsyneladende blevet til lidt for hurtigt og ukritisk, nemlig Henriks scene “Vi fødes i Armod”. Da Carl Nielsen viste manuskriptet til Thomas Laub,²¹ påpegede Laub, at denne passage mindede for meget om den romancestil, som de begge foragtede. Carl Nielsen tog kritikken til efterretning og erstattede det hidtil komponerede med afsnittet t. 1063-1103.²²

Umiddelbart efter afslutningen af første akt fortsatte Carl Nielsen med anden akt, som han dog var begyndt på, allerede inden første akt var afsluttet.²³ Og på mindre end en måned havde han også færdigkomponeret anden akt (kladden er sluttet 27. juni 1905). På dette tidspunkt må Carl Nielsen have indset, at han ikke selv kunne overkomme både at komponere og skrive rent. Han engagerede Henrik Knudsen, som fra engaged Henrik Knudsen, who from Act Two on did the fair-copying as Carl Nielsen delivered the draft in small portions.²⁴

In July and August 1905 Carl Nielsen went on a summer holiday with his family to Nyminddegab, where, with great difficulty, he had a piano installed in the inn where they were staying. There – presumably at the end of July 1905²⁵ – he began the composition of Act Three. On 12th August the work had come so far that Henrik Knudsen had begun the fair-copying,²⁶ and in the course of August Act Three was composed as far as the Henrik/Pernille scene (bb.493-615), and perhaps more.²⁷ Then the family went back to Copenhagen, where most of Act Three was composed in September. If Carl Nielsen was to have any hopes of having the opera staged at the Royal Theatre in the upcoming season, though, the score was to be handed in for evaluation no later than 9th October. When the deadline arrived Act Three had only been composed up to the Corporal Mors scene, but this did not prevent Nielsen from handing in the opera. A few tutti chords and a double bar line were added at the end, and the unfinished opera was handed in. Carl Nielsen did not expect the kapelmeister Johan Svendsen, who had always been sympathetic to him, to go through the score in detail. The plan succeeded,²⁸ and around 1st December 1905 both score and libretto had been accepted by Johan Svendsen and the Theatre's script reader Otto Borchsenius.²⁹ After this Nielsen could finish off the work in the course of the winter of 1905-1906. Exactly when Act Three was finished cannot be ascertained.

Johan Svendsen's statement was brief and positive:

"Dear Director E. Christiansen,
I can recommend Dr. W. Andersen's and Mr. Carl Nielsen's opera 'The Masquerade' for acceptance, since I consider the music, in its intimate relationship with the text, both amusing and distinctive.

Copenhagen, 2/12=1905.
Sincerely,
J. Svendsen."³⁰

24 On 3.6.1905 Carl Nielsen wrote to his wife: "I am hard at work and Knudsen is fair-copying as we go along" (Torben Schousboe, op. cit., p. 216).

25 On 14.7.1905 Carl Nielsen wrote to Henrik Knudsen: "I really haven't begun Act Three; how could you think so, Hendrik!" (DK-Kk, CNA, I.A.c.).

og med anden akt udførte renskriften, idet Carl Nielsen leverede kladden i mindre portioner.²⁴

I juli og august 1905 var Carl Nielsen på sommerferie med sin familie i Nyminddegab, hvor han med stort besvær havde fået installeret et klaver på kroen, hvor de boede. Her påbegyndte han – antagelig i slutningen af juli 1905²⁵ – kompositionen af tredje akt. Den 12. august var kompositionen så fremskredet, at Henrik Knudsen var begyndt at skrive rent,²⁶ og i løbet af august blev tredje akt komponeret frem til Henrik/Pernille-scenen (t. 493-615), muligvis endnu længere.²⁷ Herefter tog familien tilbage til København, hvor det meste af tredje akt blev komponeret færdig i september måned. Hvis Carl Nielsen skulle gøre sig forhåbninger om at få operaen opført på Det Kongelige Teater i den følgende sæson, skulle partituret imidlertid indleveres til bedømmelse senest den 9. oktober. Ved fristens udløb var tredje akt kun komponeret frem til Korporal Mors-scenen, men dette afholdt dog ikke Carl Nielsen fra at indlevere operaen. Der blev sat nogle tuttiakkorder og en dobbeltstreg, hvorefter den ufaerdige opera blev indleveret. Carl Nielsen regnede med, at kapelmester Johan Svendsen, som altid havde været positivt stemt over for Carl Nielsen, næppe ville gennemgå partituret i detaljer. Planen lykkedes,²⁸ og omkring 1. december 1905 var såvel partitur som tekstbog blevet antaget af hhv. Johan Svendsen og teatrets tekscensor, Otto Borchsenius.²⁹ Herefter kunne Carl Nielsen afslutte værket i løbet af vinteren 1905-1906. Præcis hvornår tredje akt blev færdig, kan ikke fastslås.

Johan Svendsens udtalelse var kortfattet og positiv:

"Hr Direktør E. Christiansen!
Dr. W. Andersen og Hr Carl Nielsens Opera 'Maskaraden' kan jeg anbefale til Antagelse, idet jeg finder Musiken i sin intime Tilslutning til Texten baade morsom og karakteristisk.

Kjøbenhavn 2/12=1905.

Otto Borchsenius' statement (dated 27th November 1905) about the text was on the other hand very negative:

"Since there is, unfortunately, no law forbidding the casting into a new artistic form of what has already been given fully valid, generally loved and generally known expression in another art form (the prohibition against dramatizing another man's literary property does, however, point the way); but since on the contrary there appears to be an unhappily increasing desire to make operas of the world's greatest poetic works from 'Faust' and 'Romeo and Juliet' to 'Aladdin', it was only to be expected that the turn of Holberg and his comedies would one day come.

Yet I sincerely regret that this first assault should take place in Holberg's own house.

It is the evaluation of the Music, however, that must come to bear the responsibility for, and be crucial to the acceptance – and performance – of the above-mentioned work on our national stage.

I will, therefore, with respect to the text, confine myself to drawing attention to the fact that, although the main features of the plot are of course reproduced, and the most famous parts of the dialogue are used, it does not have much of Holberg's spirit, far less his style, about it. The text rather exhibits a modern jauntiness; were one to be friendly, one could say a sophomoric or undergraduate vein. Just as one wonders in general how an author such as Dr. Vilhelm Andersen, who on other occasions has shown so much interest in Holberg, has been able to make free with a comedy like 'Masquerade', there are in the details such breaches of the Holbergian tone and idiom that many people – who love Holberg – will probably be offended. There is talk, for example, of 'Krus' ('dough') in the sense of money, and of 'Sold' ('binge') – a term that is not a hundred years old; and Jeronimus, Leonard and Arv must even at one juncture sing the following together:

And when that's done,
go trouble-making
– a turn of phrase that would surely be more appropriate in a revue in Nørrebro than on Kongens Nytorv.

However, in an opera the music swallows up so much of the text, and the esteemed management of the Royal Theatre might possibly urge upon Dr. Andersen the wisdom of refraining from publishing his 'rewriting of Holberg'³¹

Permit me to repeat that the musical adjudicators must here bear the responsibility.

Sincerely
Otto Borchsenius"³²

³¹ Vilhelm Andersen had the libretto printed in 1906. This first edition of the printed libretto (Source Pd) differs somewhat from the libretto of the opera, since Carl Nielsen did not set all of Vilhelm Andersen's text.

Otto Borchsenius' udtalelse (dateret 27. november 1905) vedrørende teksten var derimod yderst negativ:

"Da der desværre ikke findes nogen Lov, der forbyder at omstøbe i ny Kunstform, hvad der allerede har faaet et fuldgyldigt og almen-kært og -kendt Udtryk i en anden Kunstform (Forbudet imod at dramatisere Andenmands literære Ejendom viser dog Vejen herhen imod), men da der tværtimod synes at være en usalig voxende Lyst til at gøre Operaer af Verdens største Digterværker, fra 'Faust' og 'Romeo og Julie' til 'Aladdin' – var det jo at vente, at Turen ogsaa en Gang vilde komme til Holberg og hans Komedier.

Jeg beklager dog oprigtig, at dette første Attentat skal finde Sted i Holbergs eget Hus.

Det maa jo imidlertid være Bedømmelsen af Musiken, der kommer til at bære Ansvarer for og være afgørende med Hensyn til ovennævnte Arbejdes Antagelse – og Opførelse – paa vor nationale Skueplads.

Jeg skal derfor, hvad Texten angaar, indskräne mig til at gøre opmærksom paa, at den trods den selvfølgelige Gengivelse af Handlingens Hovedtræk og Benyttelsen af det berømteste i Replikskiftet, ikke har altfor meget af Holbergs Aand, endlige hans Stil, over sig. Texten er snarere moderne forsoren; vilde man være venlig, kunde man sige med et burschikost eller studentikost Præg. Som det i det hele kan undre én, at en Forf. som Dr. Vilh. Andersen, der ved andre Lejligheder har vist saa megen Interesse for Holberg, har kunnet forgribe sig paa en Komodie som 'Maskarade', er der i Enkeltheder saadanne Brudd paa Holbergsk Tone og Sprog, at mange – der holder af Holberg – sikkert vil forarges. Der tales f. Ex. om 'Krus' i Betydning af Penge og om 'Sold' – en Glose, der ikke er 100 Aar gammel og Jeronimus, Leonard og Arv skal endogsaa et Sted i Fællig synge følgende:

I vil paa Sjov
og paa Ballade
– en Vending, der vistnok mere ville passe i en Revue paa Nørrebro end paa Kongens Nytorv.

I en Opera sluger jo imidlertid Musiken saa meget af Texten, og den højtarede Direktion for det kgl. Theater kunde mulig opfordre Dr. Andersen til klogelig at undlade Offentliggørelse af sin 'Omskrivning af Holberg'³¹

Jeg tillader mig at gentage, at den musikalske Censur her maa bære Ansvarer.

Ærbødigst
Otto Borchsenius"³²

³¹ Vilhelm Andersen lod librettoen trykke i 1906. Denne førsteudgave af den trykte libretto (kilde Pd) afviger en del fra operaens libretto, idet Carl Nielsen ikke komponerede hele Vilhelm Andersens tekst.

Even while Masquerade was still being assessed, Carl Nielsen had extracts from the opera performed in his first independent orchestral concert, on 11th November 1905 with the Royal Orchestra in the large hall of Koncertpalæet. The extracts consisted of Magdelone's Dancing Scene from Act One, the prelude to Act Two, and Dance of the Cockerel (Hanedansen).³³ The concert attracted considerable interest from both the Copenhagen music audience and the musical press. There was general agreement that Carl Nielsen, with the Masquerade music, had turned to a more popular, accessible style than in his previous output, which many people had considered rather dry and contrived. Angul Hammerich³⁴ wrote for example of the Masquerade pieces that they "showed us a Carl Nielsen with a brand new face. Not only is he popular, now he also writes popularly!"³⁵

At the end of November 1905 Carl Nielsen gave a "recital" of extracts from Masquerade at a ball at the Students' Association.³⁶ We do not know the details of this performance, but we must assume that Nielsen played some passages from the opera on the piano.

Finally, on 5th December, Carl Nielsen made a promise that Masquerade would appear on the stage of the Royal Theatre in October 1906, and the rehearsals would begin in May.³⁷

II THE PREMIERE

On 16th May 1906 the preparations for the premiere began with an orchestral rehearsal, and for the rest of this month there was a further orchestral rehearsal and a piano rehearsal. This was followed by a break for the summer, then on 16th August the piano rehearsals were resumed and the scenery was tried out. At the beginning of October there were new orchestral rehearsals. The first full rehearsal of all three acts took place on 3rd November. The same night, at one o'clock, Carl Nielsen finished the overture, which he had only begun to compose on 25th September.³⁸ On 9th November there was a rehearsal in costumes, and finally, on 10th November, the full dress rehearsal was held. A total of 65 rehearsals before the premiere were recorded, including the full dress rehearsal.³⁹ Carl Nielsen was himself responsible for the musical rehearsals, while Julius Lehmann⁴⁰ was the stage director, and the Royal ballet-master Hans Beck⁴¹ choreographed the ballet numbers in Act Three.

Allerede mens Maskarade var til bedømmelse, lod Carl Nielsen uddrag af operaen opføre ved sin første selvstændige orkesterkoncert, som fandt sted den 11. november 1905 med Det Kongelige Kapel i Koncertpalæets store sal. Uddragene bestod af Magdelones dansescene fra første akt, forspillet til anden akt og Hanedansen.³³ Koncerteren var genstand for en anselig interesse fra såvel det københavnske musikpublikum som musikpressen. Der var almindelig enighed om, at Carl Nielsen med Maskarade-musikken var slægt ind på en mere populær og lettilgængelig stil i forhold til sin hidtidige produktion, som af mange var blevet opfattet som noget tør og konstrueret. Således skrev Angul Hammerich³⁴ om Maskarade-stykkerne, at de "viste os Carl Nielsen med et helt nyt Ansigt. Ikke blot at han er populær, nu s k r i v e r han også populært!"³⁵

I slutningen af november 1905 "foredrog" Carl Nielsen uddrag af Maskarade ved et bal i Studenterforeningen.³⁶ De nærmere omstændigheder omkring denne optræden kendes ikke, men det må antages, at Carl Nielsen har spillet nogle passager af operaen på klaver.

Endelig den 5. december fik Carl Nielsen løfte om, at Maskarade skulle komme op på Det Kongelige Teater i oktober 1906, idet prøverne ville begynde i maj måned.³⁷

Den 16. maj 1906 indledtes prøverne forud for premieren med en orkesterprøve, og i resten af denne måned afholdtes yderligere en orkesterprøve og to klaverprøver. Herpå fulgte en pause sommeren over, hvorefter klaverprøverne den 16. august blev genoptaget, ligesom der blev afholdt dekorationsprøver. I begyndelsen af oktober var der igen orkesterprøver. Første samlede prøve på alle tre akter fandt sted den 3. november. Samme nat klokken et afsluttede Carl Nielsen ouverturen, som han først var begyndt at komponere den 25. september.³⁸ Den 9. november var der fuldstændig prøve i kostumer, og endelig den 10. november blev der afholdt generalprøve. I alt er der registreret 65 prøver før premieren inklusive generalprøven.³⁹ Carl Nielsen stod selv for den musikalske indstudering, mens Julius Lehmann⁴⁰ instruerede, og den kongelige balletmester, Hans Beck,⁴¹ skabte koreografin til balletindslagene i tredje akt.

³³ Herudover bestod koncerteren af: ouverturen Helios op. 17, Symfoni nr. 2 op. 16 De fire Temperamenter, Sønnen op. 18, forspil til anden akt og duetten mellem Mikal og David fra Saul og David.

In the rehearsal on 3rd November Carl Nielsen had Frederik Rung⁴² conduct so that he himself could watch.⁴³ The composer concluded that Act Three seemed very confused, but because of the lateness of the date – it was just a week before the premiere – he could see no other option but to make cuts and exchange a few scenes. Thus Nielsen wrote to his friend the composer Bror Beckman:⁴⁴ “Today I am rather dismayed, because I think Act Three seems confused and unsettled on the stage”.⁴⁵ A few days after the rehearsal of 3rd November Nielsen finished a new aria in Act Two for Pernille, whom he thought had not been well enough characterized.⁴⁶ At the same time he moved the “Leonard/Magdelone” scene in Act Three from just after the Dance of the Cockerel on to just before the Officer/Student scene. Finally, four cuts were made in Act Three.⁴⁷

In the period up to the premiere, Carl Nielsen and Vilhelm Andersen became more and more nervous that the audience and critics would think they had committed sacrilege against Holberg, and Nielsen said a few days before the premiere that he had sensed a certain ill-feeling towards the opera at the Theatre.⁴⁸ In an attempt to forestall possible criticism, Vilhelm Andersen wrote a prologue, to be recited by Pernille, where he defended the opera. Among other things he quoted from Holberg’s Epistle 347, which says:

“I do believe of our thick-blooded race,
Restoratives will not improve its case;
And melancholy’s sovereign remedy
Is dance and song, music and poetry;
Item: of all the city’s niceties,
No greater jewel did you ever see,
pro primo, than the Grønnegade comedies,
And pro secundo than ‘The Musical Society’.
Item: it is not at the masquerades,
But outside them, that folk have escapades:
Life makes us falsify and brutalize ourselves,
And we are first ourselves when we disguise ourselves.
All innocent pastime to my heart is dear
That stirs us from a life that’s stale and drear;

⁴⁸ Politiken, 8.11.1906. In an interview with Berlingske Aftenavis, 18.3.1946, Vilhelm Andersen said the same.

Ved prøven den 3. november lod Carl Nielsen Frederik Rung⁴² dirigere, således at han selv kunne følge med.⁴³ Komponisten fandt, at tredje akt virkede meget forvirret, men på grund af det fremskredne tidspunkt – kun en uge før premieren – så han ingen anden mulighed end at foretage nogle forkortelser og ombytninger af et par scener. Således skriver Carl Nielsen til vennen og komponisten Bror Beckman,⁴⁴ at “I dag er jeg meget fortvivlet, fordi jeg synes 3^{de} Akt virker forvirret og uroligt paa Scenen”.⁴⁵ Et par dage efter prøven den 3. november blev Carl Nielsen færdig med en nyarie til Pernille, som han mente, ikke var blevet karakteriseret tilstrækkeligt.⁴⁶ Samtidig flyttede han “Leonard/Magdelone”-scenen i tredje akt fra en placering umiddelbart efter Hanedansen til frem før Officer/Studenter-scenen. Endelig blev der foretaget fire forkortelser i tredje akt.⁴⁷

I tiden op til premieren blev Carl Nielsen og Vilhelm Andersen mere og mere nervøse for, at publikum og kritikere ville finde, at de havde begået helligbrøde mod Holberg, og Carl Nielsen udtalte nogle få dage før uropførelsen, at han havde mærket en vis misstemning mod operaen på teatret.⁴⁸ I et forsøg på at komme en eventuel kritik i forkøbet forfattede Vilhelm Andersen en prolog, der var lagt i munnen på Pernille. Heri forsvarede hun operaen, idet hun bl.a. citerede fra Holbergs Epistel 347, hvori det hedder:

“Jeg tror: i vor tykblodede Nation
er intet godt som Rekreation, og bedste Raad mod al Melankoli er Dans og Sang, Musik og Poesi;
item: at blandt de Ting, som zierer Staden, er aldrig nogen større Ziérat set, og pro secundo: end ‘Det musikalske Societet’.

men udenfor, at Folk har Abe-Lader:

thi vi har nok af tunge, dvaske Folk,
vi trænger ha[a]rdt til unge, raske Folk.”⁴⁹

For we've enough of plodding, bleary folk;
Sore need we have of young and cheery folk.”⁴⁹

At the last moment, however, it was agreed not to use the prologue. In connection with a gala performance at the annual banquet of the University of Copenhagen on 18th November 1937 Vilhelm Andersen submitted the prologue with a new introduction aimed at the academic audience. To his great annoyance, however, it was rejected, and instead he had it published in Berlingske Aftenavis the same day. Not until the 100th performance of Masquerade on 18th March 1946 was the prologue read, by the actress Karen Berg.⁵⁰

The world premiere was on 11th November 1906 at 7.30 pm, with the following cast:

Jeronimus: Karl Mantzius
Magdelone: Jonna Neiendam
Leander: Hans Kjerulf
Henrik: Helge Nissen
Arv: Lars Knudsen
Leonard: Peter Jerndorff
Leonora: Emilie Ulrich
Pernille: Ida Møller (Margrethe Lendrop was to have sung the role, but as a result of illness she did not sing it until 18th November).⁵¹

The period up to the premiere had been very exhausting and hectic for Carl Nielsen, and in an interview the day after the premiere evening he said:

“Seriously, I can tell you, if ‘Masquerade’ hadn’t been launched yesterday, I don’t know if I would have got through it all in one piece. I’m not afraid to work, but there are limits.”⁵²

The premiere production was a decided audience success and a more or less unanimous press acknowledged the music as original, since Nielsen, without resorting to Rococo pastiche, had hit off a personal style that was at once modern and in keeping with Holberg’s dry humour. Act One in particular was considered excellent, while the reviewers were more mixed in their assessment of Vilhelm Andersen’s text. For example, Charles Kjerulf⁵³ wrote in Politiken:

I sidste øjeblik blev man dog enige om ikke at anvende prologen. I forbindelse med en festforestilling ved Københavns Universitets årsfest den 18. november 1937 indleverede Vilhelm Andersen prologen med en ny indledning, der henvendte sig til det akademiske publikum. Til hans store ærgerlse blev den dog afvist, hvorfor han i stedet lod den offentliggøre i Berlingske Aftenavis samme dag. Først ved den 100. opførelse af Maskarade den 18. marts 1946 blev prologen fremsagt af skuespillerinden Karen Berg.⁵⁰

Upremieren fandt sted den 11. november 1906 kl. 19.30 med følgende besætning:

Jeronimus: Karl Mantzius
Magdelone: Jonna Neiendam
Leander: Hans Kjerulf
Henrik: Helge Nissen
Arv: Lars Knudsen
Leonard: Peter Jerndorff
Leonora: Emilie Ulrich
Pernille: Ida Møller (egentlig skulle Margrethe Lendrop have sunget partiet, men pga. sygdom kom hun først til at synge rollen fra den 18. november).⁵¹

Perioden op til uropførelsen havde været meget anstrengende og nervepirrende for Carl Nielsen, og i et interview dagen efter premiereaftenen udtalte han:

“Jeg vil alvorlig talt sige Dem, at hvis ‘Mascarade’ ikke var løbet af Stablen igaar, tror jeg ikke, jeg var kommen det igennem hel og holden. Jeg er jo ikke bange for at bestille noget, men der er dog Grænser”.⁵²

Premiereforestillingen blev en klar publikumssucces, og en stort set enig presse anerkendte musikken som original, idet Nielsen uden at forfalde til rokokopastiche havde ramt en personlig stil, der på én og samme tid var moderne og i slægt med Holbergs tørre humor. Især første akt fandt man fremragende, derimod var anmelderne noget mere delte i deres vurdering af Vilhelm Andersens tekst. Fx skrev Charles Kjerulf⁵³ i Politiken:

"Dr. Vilhelm Andersen has written a libretto which in many respects must help and stimulate a composer. Perhaps the accumulation of so many rather too ingenious rhymes is a bit much – [...] With his considerable talent, he [Carl Nielsen] has all the same hammered it into a musical dialect that – particular with respect to the comic – does not clash with Holberg, and even suits him. This is especially true of Act One, which is probably the most successful and substantial."⁵⁴

Angul Hammerich too singled out the first act in Nationaltidende, writing:

"The first act works excellently. After this one would swear that Carl Nielsen was born to write opéra comique. So smooth, so dexterous, such a quick turn of phrase, such aptness in the dialogue, with fine phrases and droll ideas; equally felicitous in the treatment of the text, the singing roles, the instruments of the orchestra. And all of it so redolent of Holberg. In the craft of music, it is a fully-fledged master who holds the pen; one can only think of Verdi in 'Falstaff' to find a parallel."⁵⁵

Leopold Rosenfeld's⁵⁶ review in Dannebrog was extremely critical of the libretto:

"One dares not actually read the libretto for this Opera. One feels such disgust at so much lack of taste and style that one wonders how anyone could so amputate a work of poetry that has almost become part of ourselves."⁵⁷

The staging appears to have been excellent and fully satisfactory to the composer, although the ballet numbers had raised a few eyebrows to put it mildly. About this Carl Nielsen wrote on 2nd December 1906 to the ballet-master Hans Beck:

"I must ask you once again to see that the gentlemen in the Dance of the Cockerel in 'Masquerade' do not screech and bark in the wrong places. If this cannot be modified quite considerably, I request you wholly to forbid these gentlemen to crow and screech. The last time the opera was on it was again very bad and tasteless, and I have in fact taken great pains in the orchestra to ensure that there can be no doubt of what is being danced."⁵⁸

In March 1907 Edvard Grieg attended a performance of Masquerade. In this connection he wrote on 20th March to Carl Nielsen:

"Dear Carl Nielsen!
Thank you for last evening! It is an amusing and witty work you have created! I got to grips immediately with the first act, less

"Dr. Vilh. Andersen har skrevet en Tekstbog, der paa mangfolige Punkter maa anspore og hjælpe en Komponist. Der er maaske nok hobet lovlige mange, lidt for spidsfindige Rim sammen – [...] Med sin betydelige Begavelse har han [Carl Nielsen] alligevel faaet fremtvunget en Musik-Dialekt, der – navnlig i det Komiske – ikke skurrer mod Holberg, men endog klæder ham. Dette gælder navnlig første Akt, der sikkert er den mest vellykkede og betydeligste."⁵⁴

Angul Hammerich fremhævede i Nationaltidende ligeledes første akt, hvorom han skrev:

"Denne første Akt virker udmarket. Efter den skulde man sværge paa, at Carl Nielsen er født til Opéra comique'en. Saa let, saa behændigt, saa snar i Vendingen, saa rammende i Replikken, med fine Vendinger og pudsige Paahit, i Textbehandlingen, i Sangpartierne, i Orkestrets Instrumenter lige træffende. Og det altsammen saa duftende 'Holbergsk'. I den musikalske Faktur er det en hel Mester, der fører Pennen, man kommer uvilkaarligt til at tænke paa Verdi i 'Falstaff' for at finde et Sidestykke."⁵⁵

Leopold Rosenfelds⁵⁶ anmeldelse i Dannebrog var yderst kritisk over for librettoen:

"Man bør egentlig ikke læse Textbogen til denne Opera. Man føler et saadant Ubehag ved en Mængde Smagløsheder og Stilløsheder, man undrer sig over, at nogen kan foretage en slig kynisk Amputation overfor et Digterværk, der næsten er blevet en Del af os selv."⁵⁷

Iscenesættelsen har tilsyneladende været fremragende og til komponistens fulde tilfredshed, omend balletindslagene har været mildest talt opsigtsvækrende. Herom skrev Carl Nielsen den 2. december 1906 til balletmester Hans Beck:

"Jeg beder Dem endnu engang om at Dhrr i Hanedansen i 'Maskarade' ikke skriger og gør paa de gale Steder. Ifald det ikke kan modereres meget betydeligt anmoder jeg Dem om ganske at forbryde Dhrr at gale og skrige. Sidst Operaen gik var det atter meget slemt og smagløst og egentlig er der i Orkestret sørget for at man ikke er i Tvivl om hvad det er der danses."⁵⁸

I marts 1907 overværede Edvard Grieg en opførelse af Masquerade. I denne forbindelse skrev han den 20. marts:

"Kjære Carl Nielsen!
Tak for igårafst! Det er et morsomt og vittigt Værk, De der har skabt! Første Akt fik jeg straks Tag i, anden mindre, i tredie fik

III PERFORMANCES AT THE ROYAL THEATRE IN CARL NIELSEN'S LIFETIME

Masquerade soon became a very popular opera at the Royal Theatre. Even in the premiere season it was played twenty times, and during Carl Nielsen's lifetime the opera managed to be performed no fewer than 68 times over thirteen seasons in three different productions:⁶⁰

Season	Performances	Conductor	Duration
1906/07	20	Carl Nielsen (12) Frederik Rung (8)	177 mins.
1907/08	5	Carl Nielsen	178 mins.
1908/09	2	Carl Nielsen	177 mins.
1910/11	4	Carl Nielsen	178 mins.
	New production:
1917/18	3	Carl Nielsen	154 mins. ⁶¹
1918/19	5	Georg Høeberg ⁶²	151 mins. ⁶³
1922/23	6	Georg Høeberg	150 mins.
1923/24	1	Georg Høeberg	147 mins.

III OPPFØRELSE R PÅ DET KONGELIGE TEATER I CARL NIELSEN'S LEVETID

Maskarade blev snart en meget populær opera på Det Kongelige Teater. Allerede i premieresæsonen gik den 20 gange, og i Carl Nielsens levetid opnåede operaen at blive opført ikke mindre end 68 gange fordelt på 13 sæsoner i tre forskellige iscenesættelser:⁶⁰

Sæson	Oppførelser	Dirigent	Varighed
1906/07	20	Carl Nielsen (12) Frederik Rung (8)	177 min.

IV PRINTED EDITIONS

Around New Year 1906-1907 the printed piano score for Masquerade appeared with a Danish/German libretto from the publishers Wilhelm Hansen. The piano arrangement had been done by Henrik Knudsen,⁶⁷ while the libretto had been translated by Frau C. Rocholl of Bonn. The production of this piano score had been hurried, probably because of the wish to have the score available concurrently with the premiere of the opera, and it bears clear marks of this haste. The score was engraved in the course of the summer and autumn of 1906, as the German translation became available.⁶⁸ The engraving was begun even before Carl Nielsen had composed the overture, so Act One begins on page 1, while the overture has its own pagination. Pernille's aria in Act Two (bb.654-700) is missing, since this passage was only composed after Act Two was engraved. The piano score, on the other hand, follows the changed order of scenes in Act Three.

The popularity of the opera is reflected by the contemporary printed arrangements. In the period 1907-1914 several arrangements of selected extracts for piano or various instrumental ensembles appeared from the publishers Wilhelm Hansen.⁶⁹ The Dance of the Cockerel also appeared in 1914 as a separate print,⁷⁰ while the overture was printed in 1929.⁷¹

Understandably, Carl Nielsen was very keen on getting the whole of Masquerade published in score, and at the end of 1930 he asked Wilhelm Hansen to publish the score of the opera "before the end of 1931", or he "must reserve the right to dispose of the work otherwise".⁷² However, the composer's wishes were not followed, and only with the present edition is the score available in printed form, although it should be mentioned that in 1948 a facsimile print of Carl Nielsen's fair copy of Act One was published.⁷³

67 Carl Nielsen may have drawn up part of Act Three, since some of the third act in Source D (manuscript piano score, the so-called director's part) was written by Carl Nielsen. However, it is not quite clear whether Carl Nielsen only fair-copied this passage for Henrik Knudsen, or whether he arranged it himself.

68 The translation was sent to Carl Nielsen in four portions: Act One (15.7.1906), Act Two (4.9.1906), part of Act Three (3.10.1906), the rest of Act Three (2.11.1906); cf. letters from C. Rocholl to Carl Nielsen (DK-Kk, CNA, I.A.b.).

IV TRYKTE UDGAVE R

Omkring årskiftet 1906-1907 udkom det trykte klaverpartitur til Maskarade med dansk/tysk libretto på Wilhelm Hansens musikforlag. Klaversatsen var udarbejdet af Henrik Knudsen,⁶⁷ mens librettoen var oversat af fru C. Rocholl fra Bonn. Produktionen var blevet forceret, antagelig fordi man ønskede, at partituret skulle foreligge, samtidig med at operaen havde premiere, hvilket det tydeligt bærer præg af. Partituret blev stukket i løbet af sommeren og efteråret 1906, efterhånden som den tyske oversættelse blev færdig.⁶⁸ Stikningen blev påbegyndt, allerede inden Carl Nielsen havde komponeret ouverturen, hvorfor første akt begynder med side et, mens ouverturen har selvstændig paginering. Pernilles aria i anden akt (t. 654-700) mangler, da denne passage først blev komponeret, efter anden akt var stukket. Derimod følger klaverpartituret den ændrede scenegang i tredje akt.

Operaens popularitet afspejles gennem de samtidige trykte arrangementer. I perioden 1907-1914 udkom således på Wilhelm Hansens musikforlag adskillige arrangementer af udvalgte afsnit for klaver eller forskellige instrumentalensemble.⁶⁹ Endvidere udkom Hanedansen i 1914 som separattryk,⁷⁰ mens ouverturen blev trykt i 1929.⁷¹

Carl Nielsen var forståeligt nok meget opsat på at få hele Maskarade udgivet i partitur, og i slutningen af 1930 anmodede han Wilhelm Hansens musikforlag om at udgive partituret til operaen "inden Udgangen af Aaret 1931", da han "ellers maa forbeholde [sig] paa anden Maade at disponere over Værket".⁷² Komponistens ønsker blev imidlertid ikke efterkommet, og først med nærværede udgave foreligger partituret i trykt form, idet det dog skal nævnes, at der i 1948 blev publiceret et faksimiletryk af Carl Nielsens renskrift af første akt.⁷³

67 Muligvis har Carl Nielsen selv deltaget i udarbejdelsen, idet en del af tredje akt i kilde D (håndskrevet klaverpartitur, det såkaldte instruktionsparti) er skrevet af Carl Nielsen. Det er dog ikke helt klart, hvorvidt Carl Nielsen blot har renskrevet dette afsnit for Henrik Knudsen, eller om han også selv har arrangeret det.

68 Oversættelsen blev sendt til Carl Nielsen i fire portioner: første akt (15.7.1906), anden akt (4.9.1906), en del af tredje akt (3.10.1906), resten af tredje akt (2.11.1906) jf. breve fra C. Rocholl til Carl Nielsen (DK-Kk, CNA, I.A.b.).

Immediately after the premiere, Carl Nielsen began working to get Masquerade performed abroad, but despite determined efforts 24 years were to pass before anyone succeeded in putting together a complete staged performance outside the Royal Theatre. This was in Gothenburg in 1930. But as early as 9th January 1907 Nielsen had spoken to an impresario about a possible performance in Berlin,⁷⁴ and on 19th January that year he sent the recently published piano arrangement to the operas in Vienna and Berlin.⁷⁵ The next day he also wrote to Gustav Mahler, then the director of the Vienna Opera,⁷⁶ but Mahler apparently never replied to Nielsen's letter.

In November 1907 Carl Nielsen's friend Bror Beckmann organized a concert in Stockholm, at which extracts from Masquerade were played. It was for this concert that Carl Nielsen composed the concert ending for the overture.⁷⁷ Over the next few years the overture was played several times at concerts abroad.⁷⁸

In October 1913, when the German organist Karl Straube gave a series of concerts in Copenhagen, he promised Carl Nielsen that he would work for a performance of Masquerade in Frankfurt, but this too never got beyond the planning stage.⁷⁹

In 1922, for the first time, there were realistic negotiations for a performance abroad, in Antwerp, since the Koninklijke Vlaamse Opera (the Royal Flemish Opera) wanted to put on a Danish opera. A contract was signed, and the rehearsal work started. As late as 3rd November 1922 Carl Nielsen expected the opera to be performed at the end of January the next year. In a newspaper interview he said: "Now the rehearsals are in full swing, and we are corresponding busily about the order of the scenes." He further planned to go himself to Antwerp to give the work a final brushing-up.⁸⁰ But the project unfortunately proved abortive, first and foremost because of problems with obtaining the performance material, and instead of Masquerade, Ebbe Hamerik's⁸¹ opera Stepan was performed. All the same, efforts were made for the next few 77 The concert was held on 26.11.1907; cf. note in Carl Nielsen's own set of parts of the overture (Source He, tuba part).

78 Notes in Source He (see note 77) document that in the period 1907-1929 it was performed at least ten times abroad, in Sweden, Norway and Germany, including 1.12.1922 with the Berlin Philharmonic.

Straks efter uropførelsen begyndte Carl Nielsen at arbejde på at få Maskarade opført i udlandet, men trods ihærdige forsøg skulle der gå 24 år, før det lykkedes at få stablet en komplet scenisk opførelse på benene uden for Det Kongelige Teater, nemlig i Göteborg i 1930. Allerede den 9. januar 1907 talte Carl Nielsen med en impressario angående en eventuel opførelse i Berlin,⁷⁴ og den 19. januar sendte han det netop udkomne klaverudtog til operaerne i Wien og Berlin.⁷⁵ Dagen efter skrev han ydermere til Gustav Mahler, wieneroperaens daværende chef,⁷⁶ men tilsyneladende har Mahler aldrig svaret på Carl Nielsens henvendelse.

I november 1907 foranstaltede Carl Nielsens ven Bror Beckmann en koncert i Stockholm, hvor der blev spillet uddrag af Maskarade. Det var i forbindelse med denne koncert, at Carl Nielsen komponerede koncertslutningen til ouverturen.⁷⁷ I de følgende år blev netop ouverturen spillet adskillige gange ved koncerter i udlandet.⁷⁸

Da den tyske organist Karl Straube i oktober 1913 gav en række koncerter i København, lovede han Carl Nielsen at virke for en opførelse af Maskarade i Frankfurt, men heller ikke dette blev til andet end planer.⁷⁹

I 1922 var der for første gang realistiske forhandlinger om en opførelse i udlandet, nemlig i Antwerpen, idet Koninklijke Vlaamse Opera (den kongelige flamske opera) ønskede at opføre en dansk opera. Der blev skrevet kontrakt, og prøvearbejdet gik i gang. Så sent som 3. november 1922 regnede Carl Nielsen med, at operaen skulle komme op sidst i januar det følgende år. I et avisinterview udtalte han, at "Nu er Prøverne i fuld Gang, og vi korresponderer flittigt om Scenengangen." Han planlagde endvidere selv at tage til Antwerpen for at give arbejdet en sidste afpudsning.⁸⁰ Men desværre strandede projektet, først og fremmest pga. problemer med at fremskaffe opførelsesmateriale, og i stedet for Maskarade opførtes Ebbe Hameriks⁸¹ opera Stepan. Alligevel forsøgte man i 78 Gennem optegnelser i kilde He (se note 77) kan det godtgøres, at den i perioden 1907-1929 blev opført i det mindste ti gange i udlandet, hhv. Sverige, Norge og Tyskland, bl.a. 1.12.1922 med Berlinerphilharmonikerne.

years, with help from the Danish Consul-General in Antwerp, to get Masquerade performed.⁸²

In 1929 there were again negotiations for a performance abroad, this time in Berlin, but there too it remained at the planning stage.⁸³ Finally, in December 1930 – less than a year before Carl Nielsen's death – Masquerade was staged at Stora Teatern in Gothenburg.⁸⁴ The result was a total of nine performances in the period from 1st to 15th December. The production was directed by Poul Kannevorff,⁸⁵ and conducted by Olav Kielland.⁸⁶ Carl Nielsen himself attended the last performance on 15th December and was acclaimed after the production.

VI CARL NIELSEN'S REVISIONS AND CUTS

As mentioned above, Carl Nielsen already made some cuts in Act Three in connection with the premiere, and changed the order of the scenes in the same act. Later he worked from time to time with further cuts and reworkings. Thus in February 1912 he had plans to recast Acts Two and Three into one act.⁸⁷ But apart from a few notes in his own copy of the printed piano arrangement (Source C¹) and in the Royal Theatre's copy of the same (Source C²) there is nothing to suggest that he ever began in earnest on such a reworking. Yet he never gave up the idea, and as late as September 1931 he wrote in the Royal Theatre's programme:

"I will confide in you that she [i.e. Masquerade] also has a secret flaw, which cannot be seen when she shows herself in the evening, healthy and in her finery in the limelight: in fact she has a slight curvature of the back, since Acts Two and Three should be combined in one, and indeed I intend at some point to apply a bandage in the form of an orchestral interlude so the curvature can grow straight."⁸⁸

In the new rehearsals in 1918 under the leadership of Carl Nielsen, he made further cuts in Acts Two and Three, still keeping the cuts that had been used since the premiere. This meant that the opera was shortened by some 20-25 minutes (cf. overview xxi).⁸⁹

de følgende par år med hjælp fra det danske generalkonsulat i Antwerpen at få Masquerade opført.⁸²

I 1929 var der efter forhandlinger om en opførelse i udlandet, denne gang i Berlin, men heller ikke her blev det til andet end planer.⁸³ Endelig i december 1930 – mindre end et år før Carl Nielsens død – kom Masquerade op på Stora Teatern i Göteborg.⁸⁴ Det blev til i alt ni opførelser, som fandt sted i perioden fra den 1. til den 15. december. Forestillingen blev instrueret af Poul Kannevorff⁸⁵ og dirigeret af Olav Kielland.⁸⁶ Carl Nielsen overværede selv den sidste opførelse den 15. december og blev stærkt hyldet efter forestillingen.

VI CARL NIELSEN'S REVISIONS OG FORKORTELSER

Som tidligere omtalt foretog Carl Nielsen allerede i forbindelse med uropførelsen en række forkortelser i tredje akt, ligesom han ændrede scenegangen i denne akt. Siden arbejdede han fra tid til anden med yderligere forkortelser og omarbejdelse. Han havde således i februar 1912 planer om at omarbejde anden og tredje akt til én akt.⁸⁷ Men bortset fra nogle enkelte notater i sit håndeksemplar af det trykte klaverudtak (kilde C¹) samt i Det Kongelige Teaters eksemplar af samme (kilde C²) er der intet, der tyder på, at han nogensinde for alvor er gået i gang med en sådan omarbejdelse. Han slap dog aldrig denne idé, og så sent som i september 1931 skrev han i Det Kongelige Teaters program, at:

"jeg skal betro Dem, at hun [dvs. Masquerade] også har en hemmelig Fejl, som ikke ses, naar hun om Aftenen viser sig rask og fint paaklædt i Rampelyset: Hun har faktisk en lille Skævhed i Ryggen, idet anden og tredje Akt burde være slaaet sammen til én, og jeg tænker også engang at anlægge en Bandage i Form af et Orkestermellemsspil, saa Skævheden kan vokse sig tilrette."⁸⁸

Ved nyindstuderingen i 1918 under Carl Nielsens ledelse indførte han yderligere forkortelser i anden og tredje akt, idet de forkortelser, der havde været anvendt siden uropførelsen, blev bibeholdt. Dette betød, at operaen blev forkortet med ca. 20-25 min. (jf. oversigt s. xxi).⁸⁹

89 En oversigt over forkortelser anvendt i 1918 findes i Critical Commentary, 'Cuts and Adaptations'.

In the summer of 1922, in connection with the planned performance in Antwerp, Nielsen revised the opera in collaboration with his son-in-law Emil Telmányi.⁹⁰ On this occasion the previous cuts were revised and new ones were made.⁹¹ The original intention had been to make the revisions in the Royal Theatre's score (Source A), which by this time was the only existing fair-copied score of the whole opera. But since the Royal Theatre was unwilling to lend out this score for any length of time, the revision was instead made in the pencil draft (Source B) with a view to a later transcript, which was presumably never made. The revised set of cuts was further added to a copy of the printed piano score, which was sent in October 1922 to the opera in Antwerp. In the accompanying letter Nielsen stressed that these cuts were final.⁹² Unfortunately this so important source appears to have been lost, but it is assumed that there was full agreement between the cuts in this piano arrangement and the cuts that can be seen in the draft. The revision of 1922 was done under great pressure of time, which is probably why Nielsen did not make any attempt this time either to realize his plan to combine Acts Two and Three into one act.

In the 1922/23 season, when the Royal Theatre revived Masquerade, it was Georg Høeberg who was responsible for the musical production. It is evident from the performance material that Høeberg, with two exceptions, followed the cuts that Carl Nielsen had indicated in the Theatre's score, as well as adding a few new ones.⁹³ All in all, the opera was thus shortened for this occasion by 25-30 minutes (cf. overview, p. xxi). For the two performances conducted by Carl Nielsen in the 1925/26 season, the opera was again lengthened by some 15 minutes, which must correspond to those cuts made by Høeberg that Nielsen would not accept (about 5 minutes), plus earlier cuts that he had cancelled in the revision of 1922.⁹⁴ For

I forbindelse med den planlagte opførelse i Antwerpen reviderede Carl Nielsen i sommeren 1922 operaen i samarbejde med sin svigersøn Emil Telmányi.⁹⁰ Ved denne lejlighed revideredes de hidtil anvendte forkortelser, ligesom der blev indført nye.⁹¹ Det havde oprindelig været hensigten at foretage revisionen i Det Kongelige Teaters partitur (kilde A), som på dette tidspunkt var det eneste eksisterende reneskrevne partitur af hele operaen. Men eftersom Det Kongelige Teater vægredede sig ved at udlåne dette partitur i længere tid, gennemførtes revisionen i stedet i blyantskladden (kilde B) med henblik på en senere afskrift, som dog antagelig aldrig blev udført. Det reviderede sæt af forkortelser blev endvidere indført i et eksemplar af det trykte klaverpartitur, som i oktober 1922 blev sendt til operaen i Antwerpen. I følgebrevet understregede Carl Nielsen, at disse forkortelser var de endegyldige.⁹² Desværre er denne ellers så vigtige kilde formentlig gået tabt, men det må antages, at der har været fuld overensstemmelse mellem forkortelserne i dette klaverudtag og forkortelserne, som de ses i kladden. Revisionen i 1922 foregik under stort tidspress, hvilket er den sandsynlige forklaring på, at Carl Nielsen heller ikke på dette tidspunkt gjorde noget forsøg på at realisere planerne om en sammenfatning af anden og tredje akt til én akt.

Da Det Kongelige Teater i sæsonen 1922/23 genoptog Maskarade, var det Georg Høeberg, der stod for indstuderingen. Det fremgår af opførelsesmaterialet, at Høeberg med to undtagelser fulgte de forkortelser, som Carl Nielsen havde anført i teatrets partitur, og herudover også tilføjede enkelte nye.⁹³ Alt i alt blev operaen på denne måde forkortet med 25-30 min. (jf. oversigt, s. xxi). Ved de to opførelser under Carl Nielsens ledelse i sæsonen 1925/26 blev forestillingen igen forlænget med ca. 15 min., hvilket må svare til de af Høebergs forkortelser, som Carl Nielsen ikke ville anerkende (ca. 5 min.), samt tidlige forkortelser, som han ved revisionen i 1922 annullerede.⁹⁴

the new production in 1931/32 at the Royal Theatre, under the auspices of Egisto Tango, no changes appear to have been made in the existing cuts. On the other hand, Acts Two and Three were played without a break. It is not unlikely that Egisto Tango sought help from Carl Nielsen with the many different versions of the cuts.

At some point during the period 1923-1930 a photographic copy of the Royal Theatre's score was made. This copy, which seems to have belonged to Carl Nielsen, was furnished with a Swedish and a German translation of the Danish libretto,⁹⁵ and when Masquerade was to be performed in Gothenburg in 1930, the conductor, Olav Kielland, borrowed the score from Carl Nielsen. We do not know whether this score exists today, and if so where,⁹⁶ but it appears from the correspondence between Nielsen and Kielland that Kielland transferred the cuts from this score to the piano arrangements.⁹⁷ Thus the cuts from this production can be reconstructed from the preserved copy of the stage manager's printed piano arrangement and the vocal parts.⁹⁸ These cuts correspond on the whole to those indicated by Carl Nielsen in the draft made for the revision of 1922.⁹⁹ The last preserved version of Masquerade with cuts definitely made by Nielsen is thus the pencil draft.

VII EDITORIAL STRATEGY

Masquerade is probably the work in Carl Nielsen's œuvre which poses the most intricate editorial problems. There are several reasons for this: as will be evident from the above, the work was completed very quickly and under great pressure of time, which sometimes led to a quite haphazard working process. These factors are reflected in the sources, which in many respects are inaccurate and strewn with errors. In addition, the source material is extraordinarily comprehensive, and from time to time Carl Nielsen made changes in some sources without transferring them to the others. The most striking example of this is the revision Nielsen made in the summer of 1922 with Emil Telmányi (see above).

95 Cf. letter of 26.11.1937 from Anne Marie Carl-Nielsen to Carl Johan Michaelsen (company director and wholesaler (1885-1963), who supported Carl Nielsen financially). Here she describes the copy as "not handwritten but a mechanical reproduction" and she identifies the score as a copy of the Royal Theatre's score, that is Source A (copy of this letter in Rigsarkivet, Det Kongelige Teaters Arkiv: Korrespondance 1905-1930. XIV. Køb og leje af Stykker. b. Opera. Nr. 1320).

Ved nyindstuderingen i 1931/32 på Det Kongelige Teater under ledelse af Egisto Tango blev der tilsyneladende ikke ændret i de eksisterende forkortelser. Til gengæld spillede anden og tredje akt uden ophold. Det er ikke usandsynligt, at Egisto Tango har søgt hjælp hos Carl Nielsen vedrørende de mange forskellige versioner af anvendte forkortelser.

På et tidpunkt i løbet af perioden 1923-1930 blev der fremstillet en fotografisk kopi af Det Kongelige Teaters partitur. Denne kopi, som tilsyneladende har tilhørt Carl Nielsen, var forsynet med en svensk og en tysk oversættelse af den danske libretto,⁹⁵ og da Masquerade i 1930 skulle opføres i Göteborg, lånte dirigenten Olav Kielland partituret af Carl Nielsen. Det vides ikke, om dette partitur eksisterer i dag og i givet fald hvor,⁹⁶ men af korrespondancen mellem Nielsen og Kielland fremgår det, at Kielland har overført forkortelserne fra dette partitur til klaverudtogene.⁹⁷ På denne måde kan forkortelserne fra denne opsætning rekonstrueres gennem det endnu bevarede eksemplar af regissørens trykte klaverudtog og vokalstemmerne.⁹⁸ Disse forkortelser svarer stort set til de forkortelser, Carl Nielsen angav i kladden i forbindelse med revisionen i 1922.⁹⁹ Den seneste bevarede version af Masquerade med forkortelser, der éntydigt stammer fra Carl Nielsens hånd, er således blyantskladden.

VII REDAKTIONEL STRATEGI

Maskarade er nok det værk i Carl Nielsens produktion, der byder på de mest intrikate problemer med hen-syn til revision. Dette skyldes flere forhold: Som det fremgår af ovenstående, blev værket til på ganske kort tid og under stort tidspres, hvilket førte til en til tider ganske hasarde-ret arbejdsproces. Disse forhold afspejles i kilderne, som i mange henseender er unøjagtige og behæftet med fejl. Hertil kommer, at kildematerialet er overordentligt omfattende, og at Carl Nielsen fra tid til anden foretog ændringer i enkelte kilder uden at overføre disse til de øvrige. Det mest eklatante eksempel på denne problemstilling er den revision, som Carl Nielsen i sommeren 1922 foretog i samarbejde med Emil Telmányi (se ovenfor).

95 Jf. brev af 26.11.1937 fra Anne Marie Carl-Nielsen til Carl Johan Michaelsen (direktør og grosserer (1885-1963), støttede Carl Nielsen finansielt). Hun beskriver heri kopien som "ikke haandskrevet, men en mekanisk Cjengivelse" og hun identificerer partituret som en kopi af det Kongelige Teaters partitur, altså kilde A (kopi af omtalte brev i: Rigsarkivet, Det Kongelige Teaters Arkiv: Korrespondance 1905-1930. XIV. Køb og leje af Stykker. b. Opera. Nr. 1320).

The main source for the music is the ink fair copy (Source A), with due allowance for Carl Nielsen's later revisions in other sources – primarily the pencil draft (Source B). As regards the order of the staging, the work is given in the version that Carl Nielsen had already drawn up for the premiere, but at the same time the original order is documented in the appendix of vol. I/3 and in the Critical Commentary. The opera is given in its full length – that is disregarding the cuts that Carl Nielsen made as early as the premiere. This is an exception from the stated intention of the Carl Nielsen Edition to reproduce the latest version sanctioned by the composer, which would have led to a drastic abridgement of the second and third acts. On the other hand all authentic cuts and consequential changes in the music are documented in the appendix of vol. I/3 and in the Critical Commentary.

The main source for the libretto and the stage directions is, as for the music, the ink fair copy. Changes in this have been made where other sources express Carl Nielsen's latest wishes. Obvious errors and deficiencies have been tacitly adjusted. In revising the text due allowance has been made for Carl Nielsen's and Vilhelm Andersen's deliberately archaizing language and the Zealand dialect. The main source is highly inconsistent in spelling and punctuation. To achieve consistent spelling and at the same time keep the archaic feel, the first edition of the printed libretto (Source Pd) has been chosen as the basis for the spelling of individual words, while the actual vocabulary follows the main source. The punctuation mostly follows the main source. Exclamation marks and question marks that had been omitted or forgotten in the fair copy have been added as in the pencil draft, or, in the case of Act Three, according to the director's copy (Source D), since the first 1400 bars or so of this source were written by Carl Nielsen. Missing full stops, missing commas that disturb the sense, and commas for repetitions of words or sentences have been added with due consideration for the music.

The English translation of the libretto is based in all essentials on a translation by Reginald Spink, which is the available English translation that best reflects the meaning and atmosphere of the original. This translation was done in connection with Opera North's production in 1990. Reginald Spink died in 1993, and with the consent of his heirs David Fanning has reviewed and revised the translation, making a few changes in the wording, and adapting the textual and rhythmic flow.¹⁰⁰

The Editors

¹⁰⁰ Since Spink's translation does not take sufficient account of the textual and rhythmic flow, Simon Andrew Stirling made a freer, more flowing version for the Opera North production. This reworking has been consulted, but not used for the present edition.

Hovedkilden til nodeteksten er blækrenskriften (kilde A), idet der er taget hensyn til Carl Nielsens senere revisioner i andre kilder – primært blyantskladden (kilde B). Med hensyn til scenegangen gengives værket i den version, som Carl Nielsen udarbejdede allerede i forbindelse med uropførelsen, men samtidig dokumenteres den oprindelige scenegang i et appendiks i bd. I/3 og i Critical Commentary. Operaen gengives i sin fulde længde, dvs., at der ses bort fra de forkortelser, som Carl Nielsen foretog allerede ved uropførelsen. På dette punkt dispenseres fra Carl Nielsen Udgavens erklærede intention om at gengive den seneste af komponisten sanktionerede version, idet dette ville have medført en drastisk forkortelse af såvel anden som tredje akt. Til gengæld dokumenteres alle autentiske forkortelser og deraf følgende nodeforandringer i et appendiks i bd. I/3 og i Critical Commentary.

Hovedkilden til libretto og regibemærkninger er, ligesom for nodetekstens vedkommende, blækrenskriften. Ændringer i forhold til denne er foretaget, når andre kilder udtrykker Carl Nielsens seneste vilje. Åbenlyse fejl og mangler er stiltiende justeret. Ved revisionen af teksten er der taget hensyn til Carl Nielsens og Vilhelm Andersens bevidst arkaiserende sprog og den sjællandske dialekt. Hovedkilden er meget inkonsekvent med hensyn til ortografi og tegnsætning. For at ensrette stavemåderne og samtidig bibeholde det arkaiserende præg er førsteudgaven af den trykte libretto (kilde Pd) valgt som grundlag for de enkelte ords stavemåde, mens selve ordvalget følger hovedkilden. Tegnsætningen følger overværende hovedkilden. Udråbstegn og spørgsmålstege, som er udeladt eller glemt i renskriften, er tilføjet ifølge blyantskladden, eller, for tredje akts vedkommende, ifølge instruktionspartiet (kilde D), idet de første ca. 1400 takter i denne kilde er skrevet af Carl Nielsen. Manglende punktummer samt meaningsforstyrrende manglende kommaer og kommaer i forbindelse med gentagelser af ligestillede ord eller sætninger er tilføjet under skyldig hensyntagen til musikken.

Den engelske oversættelse af librettoen hviler i alt væsentligt på en oversættelse af Reginald Spink, som er den af de foreliggende engelske oversættelser, der bedst afspejler originalens mening og atmosfære. Denne oversættelse blev udarbejdet i forbindelse med Opera North's opførelse i 1990. Spink døde i 1993, og efter aftale med hans arvinger har David Fanning gennemgået og revideret oversættelsen, idet der er foretaget enkelte ændringer mht. ordvalg, ligesom det tekstligt-rytmiske forløb er blevet justeret.¹⁰⁰ ¹⁰⁰ Da Spinks oversættelse ikke i tilstrækkelig grad tager hensyn til det tekstligt-rytmiske forløb udarbejdede Simon Andrew Stirling en friere mere letflydende version til brug for Opera North's opførelse. Denne omarbejdelse har været konsulteret, men ikke benyttet i forbindelse med nærværende revision.

Udgiverne

One possible interpretation of the many additions is as follows: a cut (3.3b) from the 1917/18 season meant that Carl Nielsen pasted in a fair copy with three new bars. For the next season, 1918/19, Høeberg(?) added Hereafter Madrigal [Hereafter Madrigal] (3.3a) in blue crayon; this cut was approved by Carl Nielsen in the summer of 1922 ("ja") ["yes"] in pencil), and at the same time he probably added Poco meno. To this Emil Telmányi added B Dur Vorzeichen [B major key signature] and Oboi in ink with a view to intended copying in Berlin in 1922. Source B shows that Høeberg's(?) cut must have been rejected by Carl Nielsen very shortly after he had approved it in A. All the same, Høeberg(?) must have used the cut in the subsequent seasons from 1922/23 until 1924/25, since at the beginning of the madrigal (Source A, p. 68) he added Spilles [to be played]; this is indicated by the reference to p. 75, which is crossed out and changed to p. 68. It should be pointed out, though, that according to the records of the Royal Theatre the Girls and the Madrigal were omitted in the period 1927-1928.

Kilde A (renskrift, tredje akt, s. 43, t. 219-221 med ny overledning, svarende til forkortelsen 3.3a og 3.3b (jf. Critical Commentary, 'Cuts and Adaptations')): Siden illustrerer hvor kompliceret udredningen af de forskellige lag af forkortelser kan være. En mulig fortolkning af de talrige tilføjelser er følgende: En forkortelse (3.3b) fra sæsonen 1917/18 har medført, at Carl Nielsen har indklæbet en renskrift med tre nye takter. Til den efterfølgende sæson 1918/19 har Høeberg(?) med blå farvestift tilføjet Hereafter Madrigal (3.3a); denne forkortelse blev godkendt af Carl Nielsen i sommeren 1922 ("ja" med blyant), og samtidig har han formodentlig tilføjet Poco meno. Dertil har Emil Telmányi tilføjet B Dur Vorzeichen og Oboi med blæk af hensyn til en påtænkt afskrivning i Berlin i 1922. Af kilde B fremgår det, at Høebergs(?) forkortelse må være blevet underkendt af Carl Nielsen ganske kort tid efter, at han havde godkendt den i A. Alligevel må Høeberg(?) have anvendt forkortelsen i de efterfølgende sæsoner fra 1922/23 til 1924/25, idet han ved madrigalens begyndelse (Kilde A, s. 68) har tilføjet Spilles; dette forhold er angivet ved henvisningen til s. 75, som er overstreget og ændret til s. 68. Det skal dog bemærkes, at iflg. Det Kongelige Teaters journalprotokol var Pigerne og Madrigalen udeladt i perioden 1927-1928.

A musical score for five string instruments: Violin 1 (Vi. 1), Violin 2 (Vi. 2), Viola (Va.), Cello (Vc.), and Double Bass (Cb.). The score consists of five measures. In each measure, all instruments play eighth-note patterns. The dynamics are marked as mp (mezzo-piano) and pizz. (pizzicato). The violins play a pattern of eighth notes followed by a rest. The viola, cello, and double bass play a similar pattern of eighth notes followed by a rest, with the double bass having a thicker stem.

This musical score page contains two systems of music. The top system spans from measure 1374 to 1376. It features vocal parts for LEND., ARV, and JER., and an orchestra with Flutes, Piccolo, Oboe, Clarinet (A), Bassoon, Horn (F), Trombone (F), Trombone Bass, Tromba, Timpani, and various strings (Violin 1, Violin 2, Viola, Cello). The vocal parts sing lyrics in French and Danish. The orchestra plays rhythmic patterns with dynamic markings like p, fp, ffz, and ff. The bottom system continues from measure 1376 to 1378. It includes the same vocal and instrumental parts, with the vocal parts continuing their lyrics and the orchestra providing harmonic support with sustained notes and rhythmic patterns.

Tempo I

A musical score for five string instruments: Violin 1 (Vl. 1), Violin 2 (Vl. 2), Viola (Va.), Cello (Vc.), and Double Bass (Cb.). The score consists of five staves, each with a different clef and key signature. The first four staves (Vl. 1, Vl. 2, Va., Vc.) have a treble clef and a key signature of two sharps. The Double Bass staff has a bass clef and a key signature of one sharp. The music is divided into measures by vertical bar lines. In measures 1-4, the instruments play eighth-note patterns consisting of a pair of notes followed by a rest. In measure 5, the patterns change: Vl. 1 and Vl. 2 play eighth-note pairs followed by a dotted half note; Va., Vc., and Cb. play eighth-note pairs followed by a quarter note; and the Double Bass plays eighth-note pairs followed by a dotted half note.
