THE VOICE

ITS PRODUCTION, CARE AND PRESERVATION

BY
FRANK E. MILLER, M.D.

WITH A NOTE BY
GUSTAV KOBBE

Pp. viii and 196. Price, Cloth, $1.25 net

NO one could be better fitted to write with authority and understanding concerning the proper development and use of the vocal organs than a leading throat specialist, to whose medical knowledge is added the results of his own experience as a professional singer. The ability to consider his problem from two absolutely differing points of view is what gives his little volume a value quite out of the ordinary, for it allows him to indicate a correct and rational physiological method of voice-production, while making full allowance for the psychological factors involved, such as mentality, artistic temperament, and correct conception on the part of the singer of the pitch, quality of tone, etc., to be produced. In short, this book is not only a result of its author's scientific knowledge as a physician, but is also the outcome of his long observation and experience as a singer; an ideal combination which has enabled him to elucidate the natural functions of the vocal organs in a clear, convincing and eminently readable manner
