To Mothers and Big Sisters

E have endeavored to make "Songs the Children Love to Sing" a complete book of recreation songs in the fullest sense of the word, by including ditties of all kinds and for all ages. There are altogether more than three hundred songs of nineteen different varieties, and under each class will be found a gradation of difficulty which will render it easy to select songs for children of any particular age or accomplishment.

The piano arrangement carries the melody in the right hand—so that the child can readily hear it—and the accompaniment in the left hand, with the words between the two staves. Accordingly the songs can be sung or played at will.

SONG GAMES FOR CHILDREN

Singing games for children are something which they will heartily enjoy if played with vim and spirit. They are also without doubt the healthiest and most elevating amusement which can be provided by mothers big and little for the little ones, indoors or out. All the universally popular and familiar singing games are included in this section of "Songs the Children Love to Sing," with general instructions as to the ways of playing them. Some of these games, however, are played in different ways in various sections of the country, therefore the instructions in this book are subject to change at will.

The Mulberry Bush

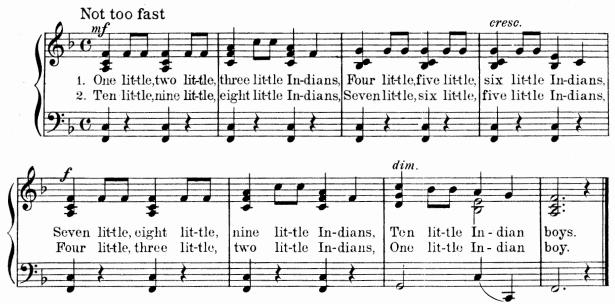

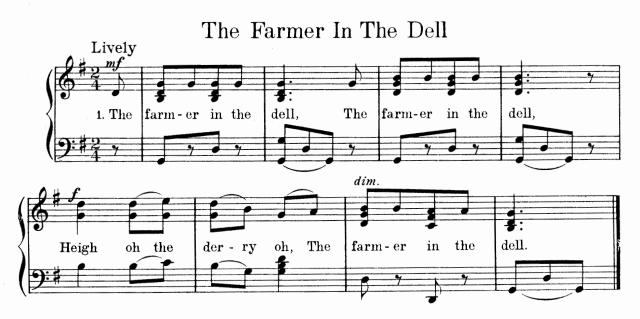

- 3. This is the way we iron our clothes, &c. So early Tuesday morning.
- 4. This is the way we scrub the floor, &c. So early Wednesday morning.
- 5. This is the way we mend our clothes, &c. So early Thursday morning.
- 6. This is the way we sweep the house, &c. So early Friday morning.
- 7. This is the way we bake our bread, &c. So early Saturday morning.
- 8. This is the way we go to church, &c. So early Sunday morning.

The game consists in simply suiting the actions to the words of each verse of the song. It is especially attractive for little girls.

Ten Little Indians

While singing the first verse, the children appear suddenly one by one, hopping Indian fashion. In the second verse they disappear one by one in the same way.

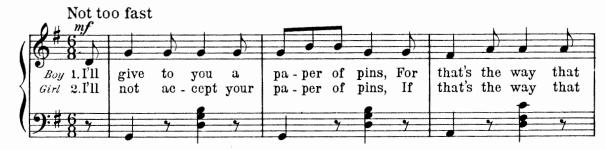

- 2. The farmer takes a wife, etc.
- 3. The wife takes the child, etc.
- 4. The child takes the nurse, etc.
- 5. The nurse takes the dog, etc.

- 6. The dog takes the cat, etc.
- 7. The cat takes the rat, etc.
- 8. The rat takes the cheese, etc.
- 9. The cheese stands alone, etc.

A child, representing the farmer stands in the center of a circle of children, and chooses another child, the wife at the end of the second verse; this one chooses another, the child, and so on until the cheese is selected, after which the game begins over again.

I'll Give To You A Paper Of Pins

Boy

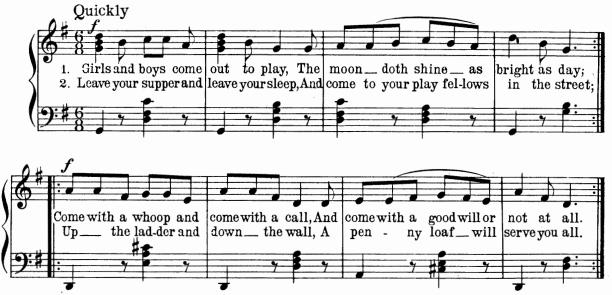

- 3. I'll give to you a nice easy chair,
 To sit and comb your golden hair
 If you will marry me, me, me,
 If you will marry me.
- 5. I'll give to you a bright silver spoon, To feed your babe this afternoon If you will marry me, me, me, If you will marry me.
- 7. I'll give to you a fine dress of green, To make you look like a real queen, If you will marry me, me, If you will marry me.
- 9. I'll give to you the key of my chest, So you'll have gold at your request, If you will marry me, me, me, If you will marry me.
- II. I'll give to you the key to my heart,
 That we may love and never part,
 If you will marry me, me, me,
 If you will marry me.

Girl

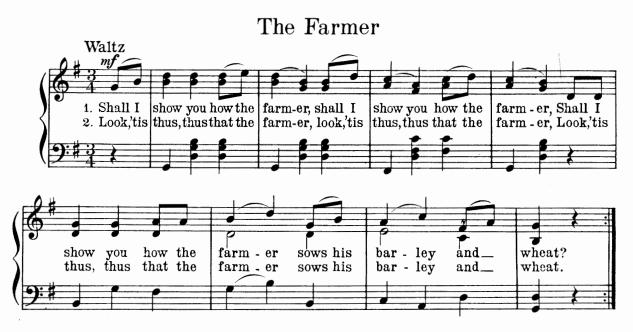

- I'll not accept your nice easy chair, To sit and comb my golden hair, And I'll not marry you, you, you, And I'll not marry you.
- I'll not accept your bright silver spoon,
 To feed my babe this afternoon,
 And I'll not marry you, you, you,
 And I'll not marry you.
- 8. I'll not accept your fine dress of green,
 To make me look like a real queen,
 And I'll not marry you, you, you,
 And I'll not marry you.
- 10. I'll not accept the key of your heart,
 That I'll have gold at my request,
 And I'll not marry you, you, you,
 And I'll not marry you.
- 12. Yes, I'll accept the key to your heart,
 That we may love and never part,
 And I will marry you, you, you,
 And I will marry you.

Verses 1, 3, 5, 7, 9 and 11 are sung by a boy, and verses 2, 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12 by a little girl. The verses may be repeated by different children until all have taken part.

Girls And Boys Come Out To Play

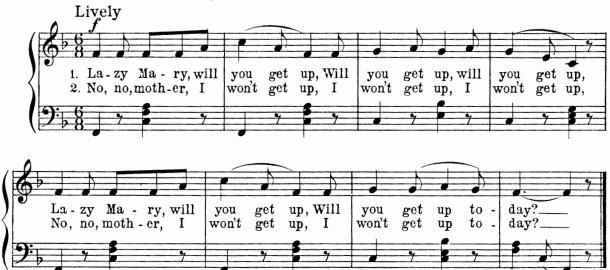

This is a kind of "free-for-all" game in which the children join hands in a circle to frolic and dance to their heart's content.

- 3. Shall I show you how the farmer, etc. Reaps his barley and wheat.
- 4. Look 'tis thus, thus that the farmer, etc.
 Reaps his barley and wheat.
- 5. Shall I show you how the farmer, etc.
 Threshes barley and wheat.
- 6. Look 'tis thus, thus that the farmer, etc.
 Threshes barley and wheat.

The game consists in the children imitating the motions of the farmer sowing, reaping and threshing wheat.

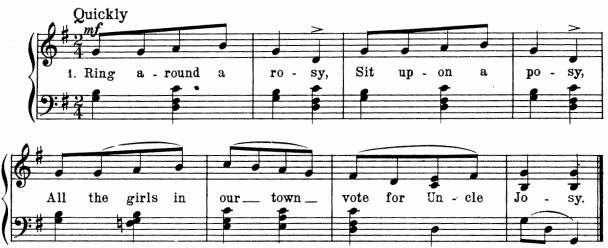

All the children sing the first verse, while dancing around the child chosen to be "Lazy Mary." Then they all sing the second verse together.

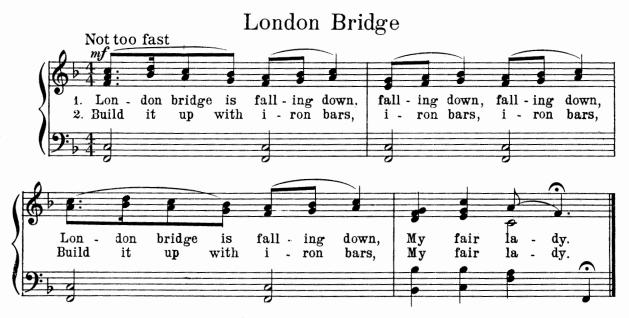

A game similar in action to 'drop the handkerchief.' When the words are sung "Idropped it" a letter or handkerchief is dropped behind some child by another who runs around the circle of players. This child picks it up and drops it behind some other child, and this keeps up until every child has had the handkerchief or letter.

Ring Around A Rosy

All the players dance around in a ring, and fall down at the last words.

- Iron bars will bend and break, Bend and break, bend and break. Iron bars will bend and break, My fair lady.
- Build it up with silver and gold, Silver and gold, silver and gold. Build it up with silver and gold, My fair lady.

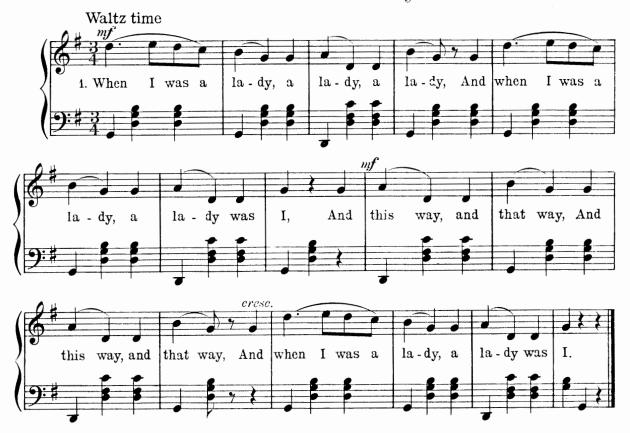

The children pass under a bridge formed by two other children raising their arms to form an arch. These two children have previously secretly decided which one represents gold and which one silver. At the words "My fair lady," the bridge falls-that is the children imitating it, drop their hands-and the child who is caught is asked which it prefers, "gold or silver." This child then takes its place behind the one who represents his choice and the game continues until all have chosen. Then a tug-of-war between "gold and silver" ends the game.

Uncle John Is Very Sick

The players circle round and suddenly squat down at the words "Governor's daughter." The last to stoop chooses the boy-or the girl-who is his or her favorite, and the second verse is sung with their names inserted at the proper places.

When I Was A Lady

- 2. When I was a young girl, etc., etc.
- 4. When I was a young man, etc., etc.
- 3. When I was a dancer, etc., etc.
- 5. When I was a soldier, etc., etc.

This is another motion game. A leader is chosen for the first verse, and she imitates the actions of a lady by making a curtsey and kissing her hands, first right and then left. A different child is chosen to represent the character in each of the verses and the other children imitate whatever motions they make.

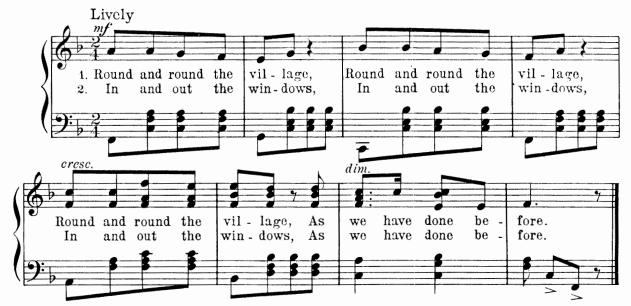

The game consists in forming two lines of children, one of which marches around the other while those who are not marching sing the verse as far as the words "Red, White and Blue." The line of marching children sings the rest of the verse and at the words "You may come too" both lines form into one and march together, singing the entire song again.

3. I will be a farmer, I will fight the foe,
I will be a lawyer, and I to sea will go,
And we'll all do our duty, our duty!

Four children can take the singing parts in this game. As they sing the different lines, they imitate the actions of a "baker" etc. All the children join in the chorus.

Round And Round The Village

3. Stand and face your lover,
Stand and face your lover,
Stand and face your lover,
As we have done before.

 Kiss her 'fore you leave her, Kiss her 'fore you leave her, Kiss her 'fore you leave her, As we have done before.

The children form a ring with one player on the outside, who runs around it while they are singing. During the second verse they raise their arms and let her in the center, and she runs in and out between the children, trying to complete the circle before the verse ends. In the third verse, she chooses her lover and they stand facing each other until the fourth verse when they exchange a kiss. Then the game begins all over again with the first child back in the circle and the one who was chosen as the lover on the outside.

Soldier, Soldier, Will You Marry Me?

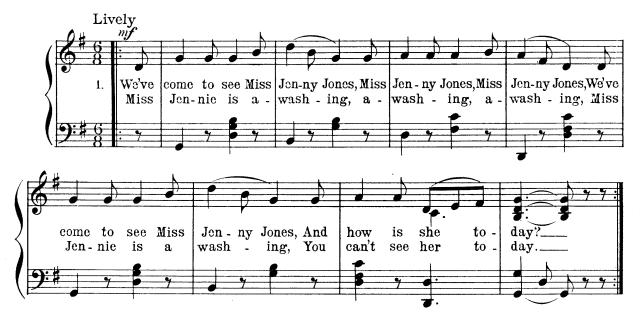

- Soldier, soldier will you marry me? etc.
 When I have no shoes to put on.
 Then she ran away to the shoemaker's shop,etc.
- 3. Soldier, soldier will you marry me? etc.
 When I have no hat to put on.
 Then she ran away to the hatter's shop, etc.
- 4. Soldier, soldier will you marry me? etc.
 When I have no gloves to put on.
 So she ran away to a glove-maker's shop, etc.
- 5. Soldier, soldier will you marry me? etc.
 "Oh, how can I marry such a pretty maid as thee,
 When I've got a good wife at home?"

Two children are selected to play the parts. The little girl sings the first half of the verse and the little boy the second half. When he says he has no coat to put on, she borrows one from some other one of the children and so on for each verse. The last verse, which is sung by the soldier alone, always creates great merriment.

- 2. We've come to see, etc.

 Miss Jenny is a-starching, etc.

 Chorus
- 3. We've come to see, etc.

 Miss Jenny is a-ironing, etc.

 Chorus
- 4. We've come to see, etc.
 Miss Jenny is a sweeping, etc.
 Chorus

- We've come to see, etc.
 Miss Jenny is a -sick-a -bed, etc.
 Chorus
- 6. We've come to see, etc.
 Miss Jenny is a dying, etc.
 Chorus
- 7. We've come to see, etc.
 Miss Jenny is a dead, etc.
 Chorus

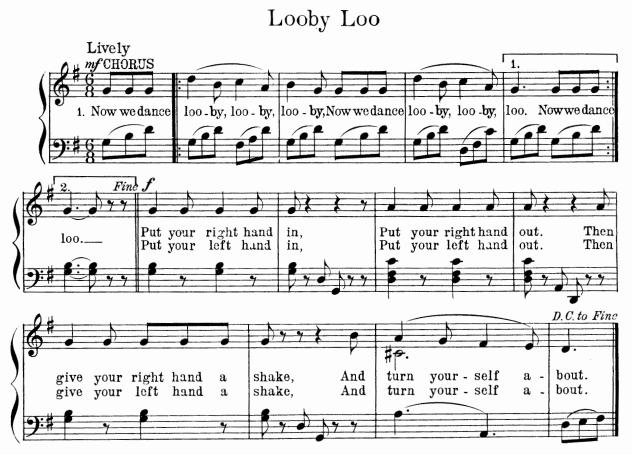

One child represents Miss Jennie Jones and another child her mother. The players dance in a circle around them singing the verse "We've Come to See Miss Jenny Jones" and the two children in the center sing the answer "Miss Jenny is a-washing" etc. When the mother says "Jenny is dead," the children run away in all directions crying. The first one she catches takes her place in the center of the circle and the game begins over again.

Now you're married you must obey, you must be true to all you say, You must be kind, you must be good, and keep your wife in kindlingwood.

The children form a ring and circle around a child representing the farmer in the center. After the first four lines are sung, they imitate the farmer's motions in sowing, etc. Then they clasp hands again. The child representing the farmer chooses a partner and they both kneel during the second verse. Then the first child joins the ring of children and the child he chose takes his place as the farmer.

This is a game of English origin and is played in many different ways. It is really a kind of gymnastic game, and in place of the instructions "Put your right hand in" there can be added the right foot, the left foot, the head, etc. While singing the song the children join hands in a circle, doing the action indicated and swaying from side to side during the chorus, which in this instance begins and ends the song.

Marching Game

A marching game in which the children imitate the actions indicated by the words.

The children form a ring, with the child representing "Sally Waters" in the center. She kneels or sits on the ground, with her face in her hands as if weeping. The ring of children dance round singing the verse, and at the words "Rise, Sally Rise," she rises and chooses another from the ring who goes into the center with her. She then joins the ring and the other child takes her place. The game continues until each child has taken the part of Sally Waters.

Two rows of children are formed, each with a leader and each facing the other. Each leader advances several steps singing and suiting their gestures to the words of the song. Then the two rows marchtoward each other, singing and imitating their leaders.

SONGS OF HOME

Every child should learn to sing the "Home Songs" of his country, for there are none with sweeter melodies or more inspired poems. In most instances, the songs such as "Home, Sweet Home" are presented with the original words, but in others, as in the case with "In the Gloaming," the original words have been altered in order to bring their meaning within the comprehension of children. This is in no sense an innovation, as it has been the custom for many years to have children's versions of well-known songs.

LULLABIES AND CRADLE SONGS

Every nation, even the uncivilized one, has many little cradle songs and lullables with which its mothers sing their little ones to sleep. The author of the poem and the composer of the "tune" in most instances are unknown, but the sweetness of sentiment and purity of melody combine to infuse in them that Divine spark which will make them live as long as mothers shall lull their children to rest. Although the original texts of many of these songs were in foreign languages, it has seemed best to present only the English versions.

3. The butterfly, drowsy,

Has folded its wing;

The bees are returning,

No more the birds sing.

Their labour is over, their nestlings are fed; It's time little people were going to bed!

4. Good-night, little people,
Good-night and good-night;
Sweet dreams to your eyelids
Till dawning of light;

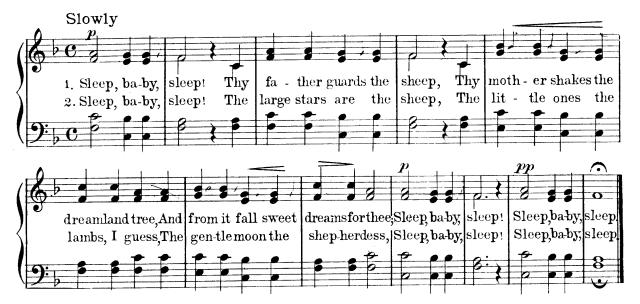

The evening has come, there's no more to be said; It's time little people were going to bed!

SONGS OF THE ANIMALS

Little children should be taught to love and do acts of kindness to our domestic animals and these tiny songs will do much to inculcate the first principles of merciful treatment in them. There are little songs about the dog, the cat, the lamb, the goose, the squirrel, the hare and many others, each one of which contains its moral lesson while at the same time a source of childish pleasure. In this way the story of "Black Beauty," of which children will never tire, is applied to every one of the dumb animals with which children come in contact.

The Sheep and the Boy

- 3. True, it seems a pleasant thing Nipping daisies in the spring; But what chilly nights I pass On the cold and dewy grass Or pick my scanty dinner where All the ground is brown and bare.
- 4. Then the farmer comes at last,
 When the merry spring is past,
 Cuts my woollyfleece away
 For your coat in wintry day.
 Little master, this is why
 In the pleasant fields I lie.

Pretty Little Deer

Three Little Pigs

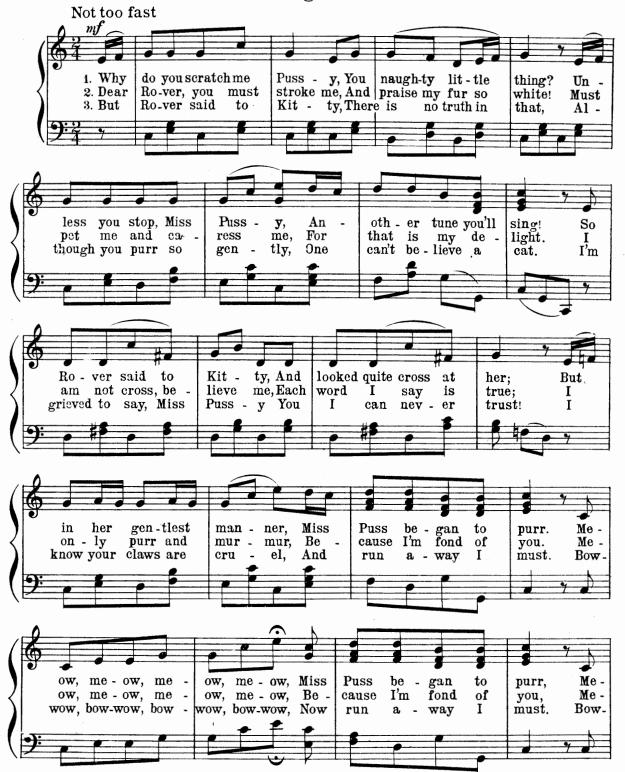

3. Then these little pigs grew skinny and lean, And lean they might very well be; (Umph!" For somehow they couldn't say "Umph! Umph! And they wouldn't say "Wee! Wee! Wee!"

4. So after a time these little pigs died,
They all died of *felo de se;*From trying too hard to say "Umph! Umph! Umph!"
When they only could say "Wee! Wee!"

Moral

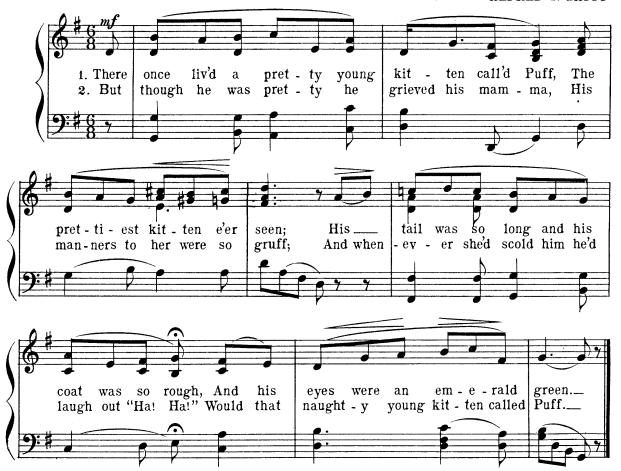

A moral there is to this little song, A moral that's easy to see; Don't try while yet young to say"Umph!Umph!" For you only can say"Wee Wee!"

The Dog And Cat

- 3. His mother one day said to her son and heir,
 "I cannot now catch mice enough
 "For us both;" but he answered, "I'm sure I don't care,"
 Did that naughty young kitten called Puff.
- 4. His mother then said, "Oh how naughty you are;"
 "I really must give you a cuff;"
 On this he showed temper, and scratched his mamma,
 Did that naughty young kitten called Puff.
- 5. Now growling most fiercely, and watching them fight, Stood a French poodle covered with fluff; And his feelings being shocked by this terrible sight He bit that young kitten called Puff.
- 6. From this you can all see 'tis much better far
 To avoid getting into a "huff;"
 So never show temper or scratch your mamma,
 Like that naughty young kitten called Puff.

Here are a number of sacred songs and hymns suitable for children of all ages, ranging from "Now I Lay Me Down to Sleep" for the little tots, to familiar religious melodies such as "The Palms. Each one of them teaches the lesson of reverence and purity in life which we all seek to instill into the little ones as soon as their minds have developed sufficiently to grasp first principles. In the instances of some hymns, only certain verses which the child can readily understand have been given; in other instances, where the verses are appropriate throughout, they will be found complete.

SONGS OF THE FLOWERS

The children who at an early age are taught to love beautiful flowers, and to sing the many dainty little songs which have been written in their honor will develope an appreciation and reverence for Nature's bounteous offerings which can never be eradicated from their hearts. The celebrations in most schools of Arbor Day and the IMay Festival are the substantial evidence of our desire to educate children in higher things than regular school studies, and the little flower songs in this volume are designed to be of material aid in elevating and ennobling the childish ideal.

- 3. Woe is me! I broke the stem,
 Life and fragrance dooming;
 Soon the lovely flower was gone,
 And the thorns remained alone
 Vanished all its blooming;
 And the thorns remained alone
 Vanished all its blooming.
- 4. Had I left thee, lovely flower,
 In thy beauty blooming,
 Bathed with dew and blushing fair,
 Thou would'st still have filled the air
 With thy sweet perfuming
 Thou would'st still have filled the air,
 With thy sweet perfuming.

SONGS OF WORK AND PLAY

Here is a happy mixture of songs which ennoble the hours of work and make festival the hours of play. It is well to create in children's minds a happy balance in their ideas of work and recreation, that they may gain a proper conception of the important part which each one plays in the scheme of life. The most beautiful thing about these songs is the cheerful lustre they shed over school or work hours, and their tendency to elevate children's ideas of the amusements they should seek in playtime.

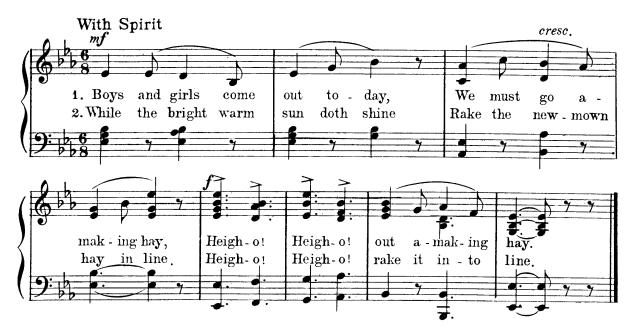

Come, Lassies And Lads

Haymaking Song

When the bright warm sun is out, Toss the new-mown hay about. Heigho! Heigho! toss it well about.

If you want hay sweet and fine, Make it while the sun doth shine. Heigho! Heigho! while the sun doth shine.

Dance Of The Fairies

3. How gaily they trip it, how happy are they,
Who pass all their leisure in frolic and play;
Who love where they list without sorrow or cares,
And laugh at the fetters that most people wear,
And laugh at the fetters that most people wear.

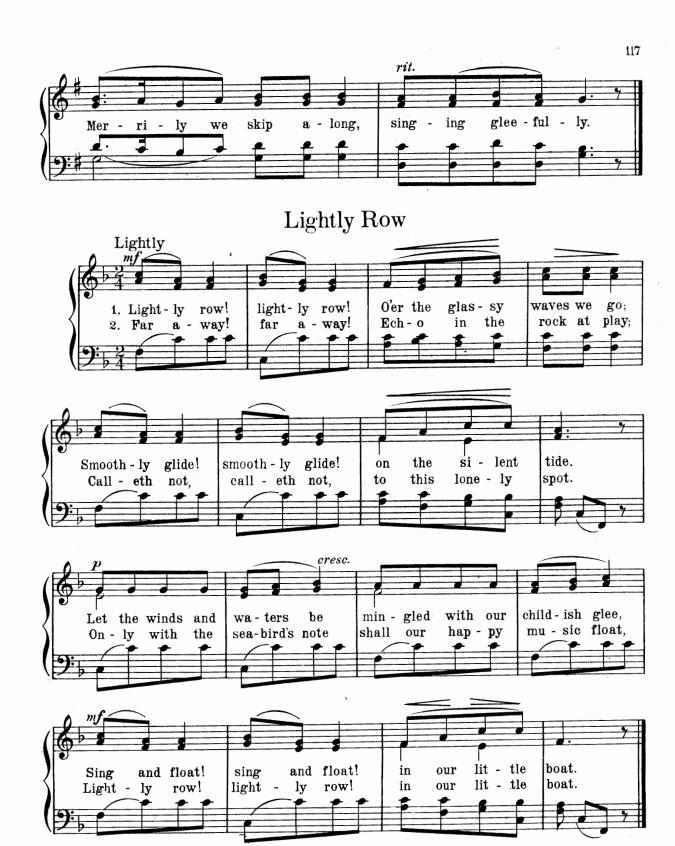

Merrily, Merrily Sing

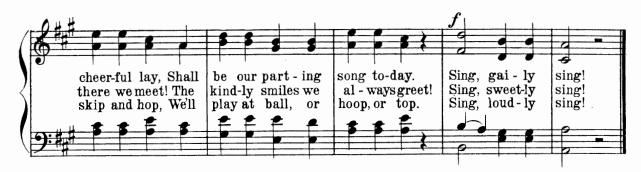

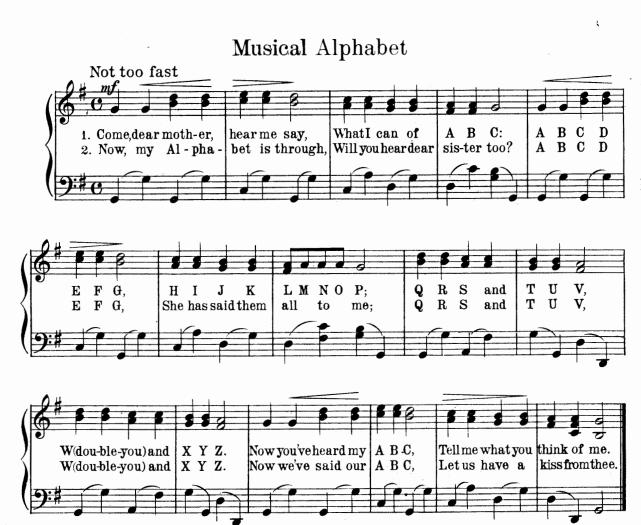

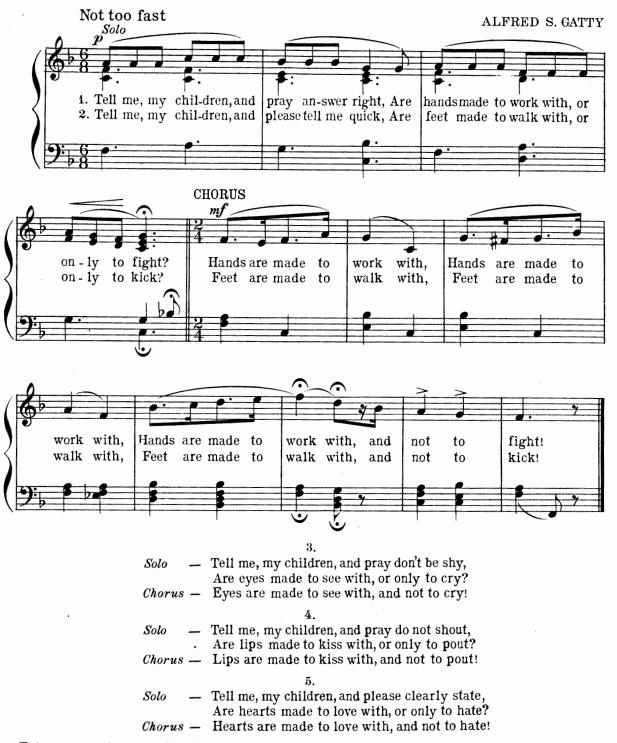

- 4. Sing, softly sing!
 When dusky night doth bring
 Its shadows o'er our drowsy heads,
 In heavenly peace we'll seek our beds.
 Sing, softly sing!
- 5. Sing, boldly sing!
 When cheerful lark takes wing,
 We'll rise as brisk and merry, too,
 Resolved our lessons well to do:
 Sing, boldly sing!

Action Song

This song may be sung with different children taking the solo part on each verse.

Song Of The Bells

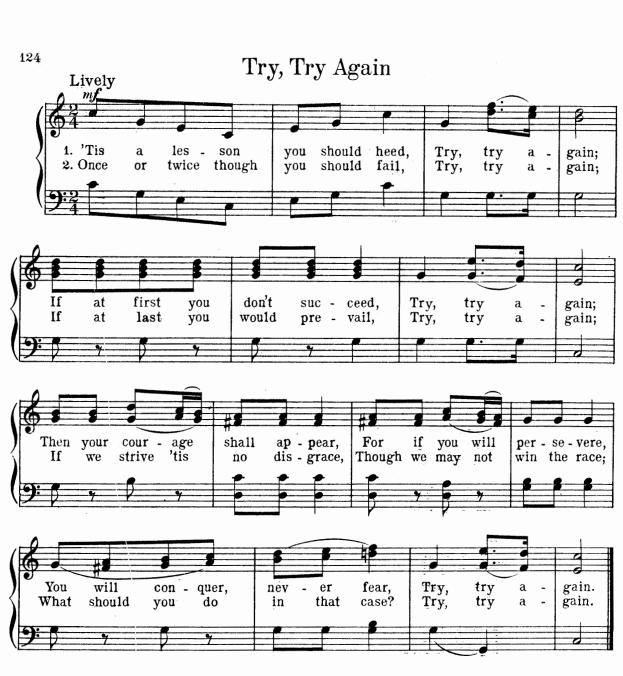

^{*)}The children can hum softly from here to the end.

The Snow Man

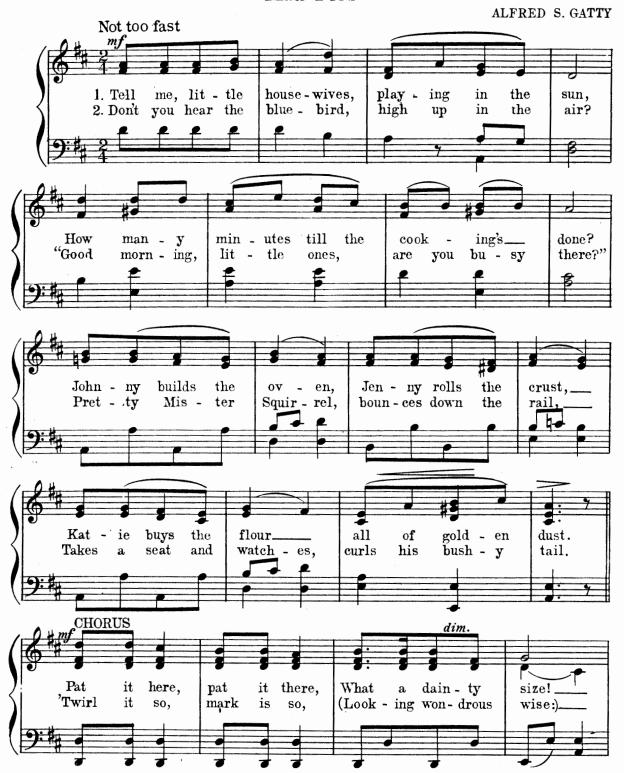

Hark, there's a bird on high, far in yon azure sky, Flinging sweet melody, each heart to gladden; And its song seems to say, banish all care away; Never let sorrow stay, brief joys to sadden. Fond hearts entwining, cease all repining; Near us is shining beauty's bright smile.

- 3. The horses neighed, and the oxen lowed; The sheep's "Bleat, bleat!" came over the road, All seeming to say, with a quiet delight, "Good little girl, good-night, good-night!"
- 5. The tall, pink Fox-glove bowed his head ____
 The Violets curtsied, and went to bed;
 And good little Lucy tied up her hair,
 And said, on her knees, her favourite prayer.
- 4. She did not say to the sun "Good-night!" 6
 Though she saw him there like a ball of light;
 For she knew he had God's own time to keep
 All over the world, and never could sleep.
- 6. And while on her pillow she softly lay, ; She knew nothing more till again it was day, And all things said to the beautiful sun, "Good-morning, good-morning, our work is begun"

Mud Pies

3. Arms that never weary, toiling dimple-deep;
Shut the oven door now, soon we'll take a peep.
Wish we had a shower, think we need it so,
That would make the roadside such a heap of dough.
Turn them in, turn them out; how the morning flies;
Ring the bell for dinner; hot mud pies!

SONGS OF THE MONTHS AND SEASONS

Every season and every month of the year has its special joys and amusements for the children, and therefore each change is gladly greeted and as cheerfully bidden farewell. The songs in this section of our book enable children to give voice to their feelings of pleasure and glee and are offered them in such variety as to cover all periods of the year. The season and month which seem to give them the greatest pleasure - Spring and the month of May - are well represented by songs which are a happy combination of cheerful sentiment and flowing melody.

Autumn Song

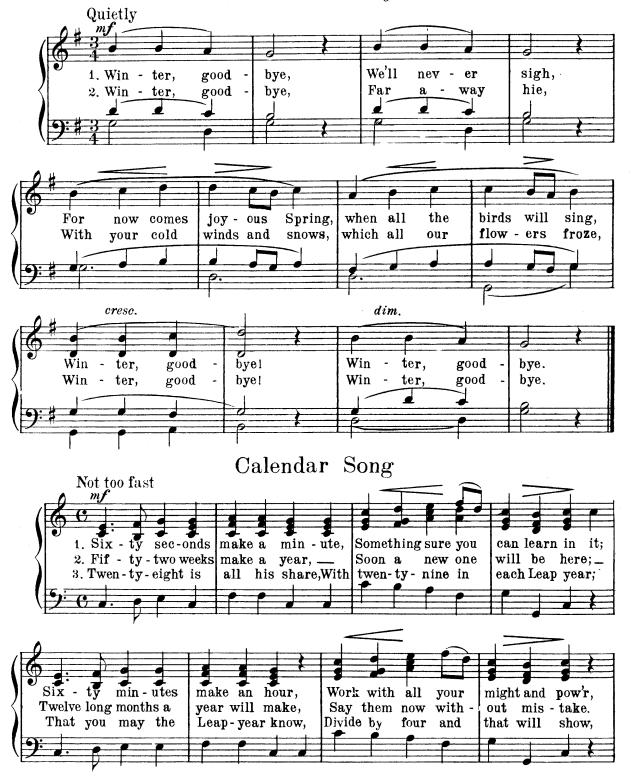

- That little bird upon the tree
 Then sang both loud and clear,
 "Tho' Spring has gone, and Summer gone,
 And Winter draweth near,
 - I sing of hope for well I know, They'll all come back next year."
- 3. "Tho' Winter is a dreary time,
 And cold and frost I dread,
 And hard it is when snows lie deep
 For birdies to be fed,
 I cheer myself with this glad thought,
 There's Springtime on ahead."

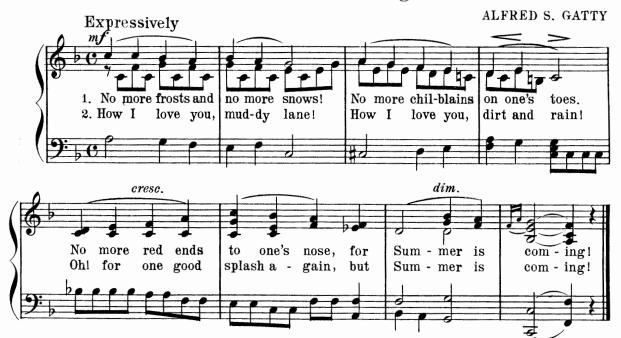

Winter, Goodbye!

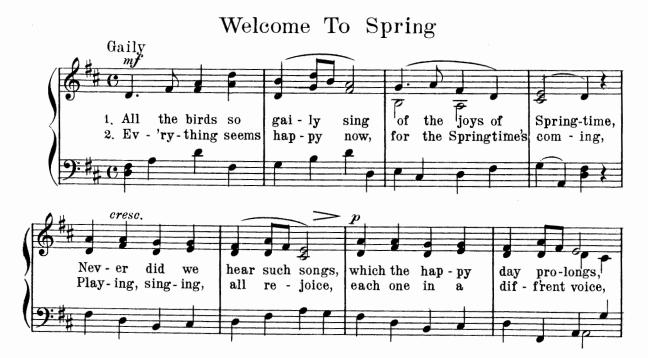

Summer is Coming!

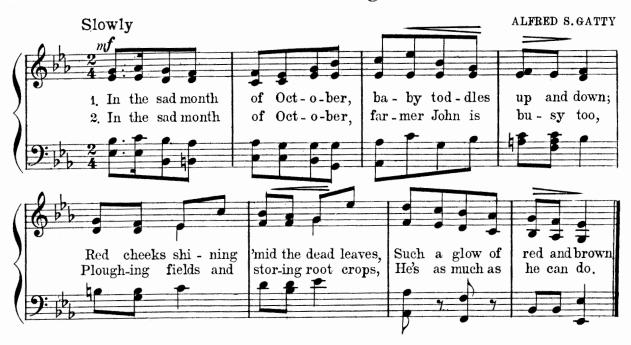

- 3. Sad regrets within me rise,
 Tears gush out from both my eyes,
 Thinking of you, sweet mud pies!
 But Summer is coming.
- 4. Endless trials I've gone through,
 Scourings scoldings smackings too,
 All for love, dear friends, of you,
 Yet Summer is coming!

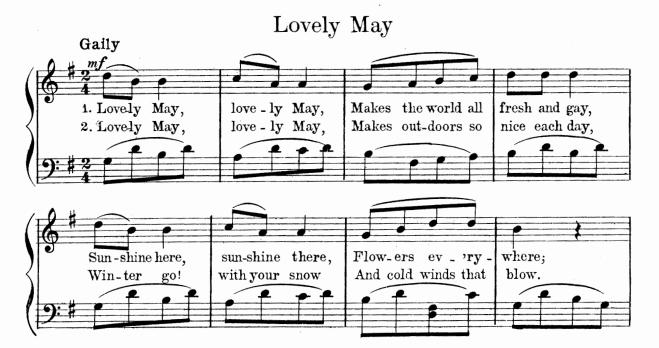

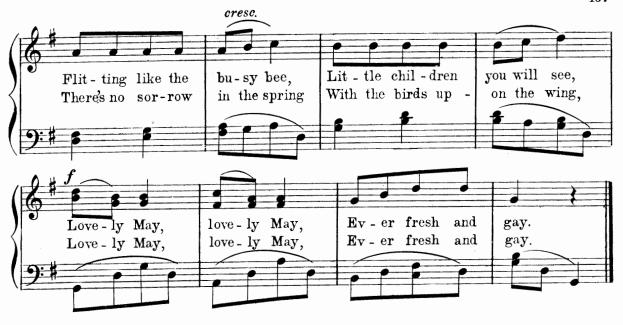

October Song

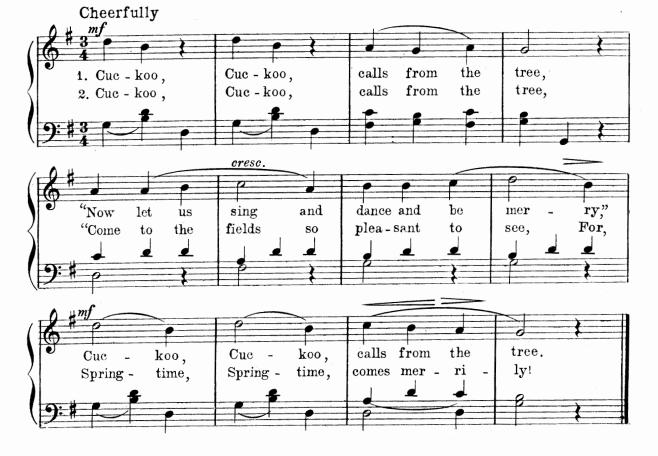

- 3. In the sad month of October,
 Gard'ners quite go off their heads,
 What with planting bulbs for Springtime,
 And with digging o'er the bed.
- 4. In the sad month of October,
 Robin hopping up and down,
 Red breast shining 'mid the dead leaves,
 Such a glow of red and brown.

SONGS FOR LITTLE GIRLS

In all the scenes of child-life there is no more charming picture than that of a little girl singing some dainty song. Here will be found a wide variety of songs suitable for little girls, all of sweetest sentiment, and all within the capabilities of the average child. You will experience no difficulty in interesting her in ditties about her doll or her daddy, or her pets, all of which are to be found in this section of the book. Teaching children to sing alone is one means of character-moulding by inculcating in them the spirit of self-reliance.

SONGS OF THE BIRDS

In the large cities where the children are hemmed in on all sides by great buildings and where they walk or play only on asphalt sidewalks they see little of the birds, and it is only through their school lessons and through these little songs that they may learn of the birds at all. You will find for their instruction as well as amusement, songs about the robin, the wren, the bluebird, and also such everyday feathered-folk as the sparrow and the crow, each of them teaching the necessary lesson of sympathy and kindness.

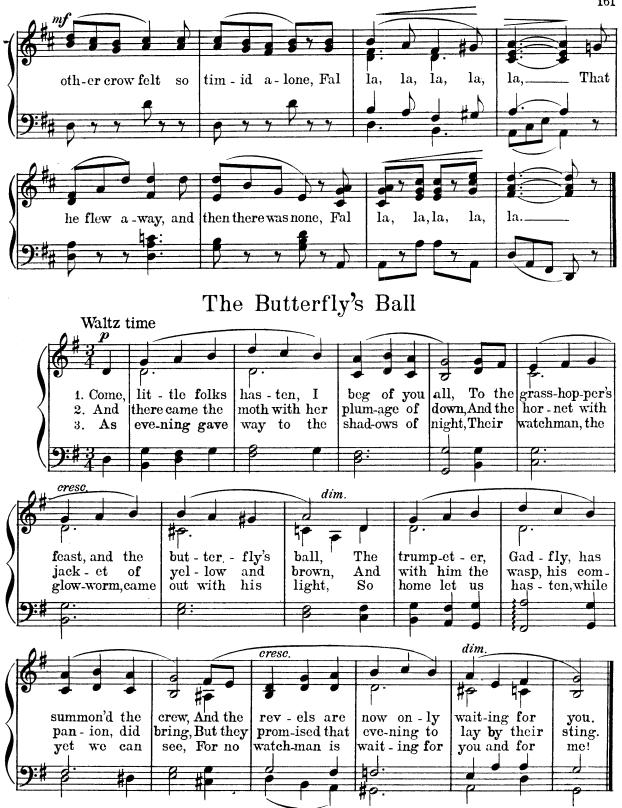

Little Robin Red-Breast

Were I A Little Bird

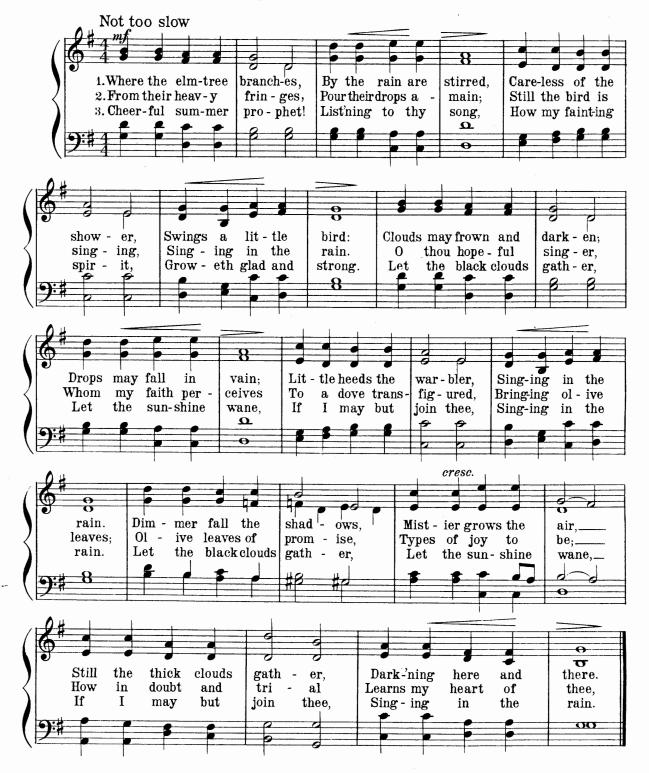

Singing In The Rain

The Sparrow On The Tree

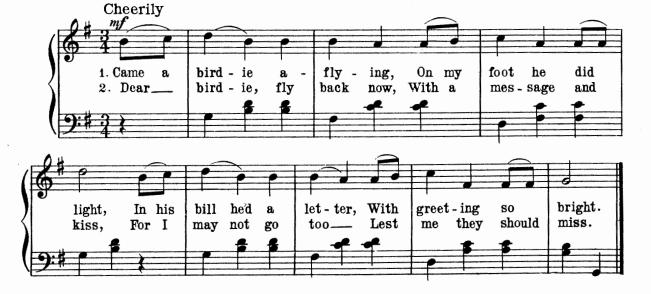

- 3. "Come in, my darling bird,
 And sit by me in here,
 I'll dry your little wings,
 They must be wet, I fear;
 Please come into this barn, my son,
 And 'cuddle' close to me—"
 But ne'er another word
 Said the sparrow on the tree.
- 4. The little bird was drowned;
 The mother hung her head;
 Next morning, as I passed,
 I found her lying dead,
 So never say, "You do not care,"
 For "don't care," as you see,
 Is certain to be drowned,
 Like the sparrow on the tree.

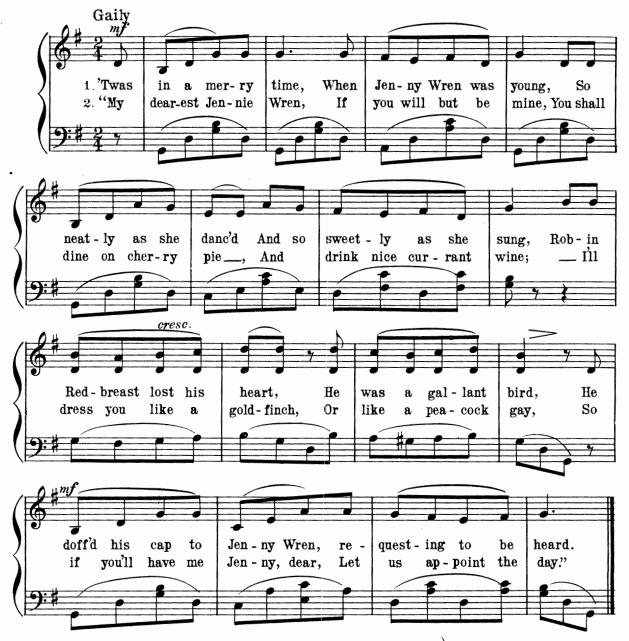

The Little Bird

- 3. Jenny blush'd behind her fan and thus declared her mind,
 "So let it be to-morrow, Rob, I'll take your offer kind
 Cherry pie is very good and so is currant wine,
 But I will wear my plain brown gown, and never dress up fine."
- 4. Robin Redbreast got up early, all at the break of day, He flew to Jenny Wren's house, and sang a roundelay; He sang of Robin Redbreast and pretty Jenny Wren, And when he came unto the end, he then began again.

ALFRED S. GATTY

- 3. Cuckoo! Cuckoo! You at the best, Cuckoo! Cuckoo! Are but a guest, Cuckoo! Cuckoo! No sooner here Than you are gone, till the following year. Ah! gone till next year.
- 4. Cuckoo! Cuckoo! We almost cry Cuckoo! Cuckoo! Saying good-bye! Cuckoo! Cuckoo! Promise, dear, do, Not to forget us, we shan't forget you! Ah! Cuckoo, Adieu!

3. One day she soared, and soaring sang
A song that sounded far and wide;
But as she reached the last long note,
This little songstress drooped and died.
They mourn her loss, these little birds,
As to their work they saddened fly;
But this they know, tho' she is dead,
The songs she sang will never die.

- 3. Bury him nobly next to the donkey;
 Fetch the old banner, and wave it about;
 Bury him deeply think of the monkey:
 Shallow his grave, and the dogs got him out.
- 4. Bury him softly white wool around him, Kiss his poor feathers - the first kiss and last; Tell his poor widow kind friends have found him. Plant his poor grave with whatever grows fast
- 5. Farewell, sweet singer! dead in thy beauty, Silent through summer, though other birds sing Bury him, comrades, in pitiful duty, Muffle the dinner-bell, mournfully ring.

SONGS FOR LITTLE BOYS

This section of "Songs the Children Love to Sing" includes a number of songs about matters dear to boys' hearts. There are songs about hunters and soldiers; about horses and ponies; about sailboats and humming tops – in fact they are all on subjects in which boys take an active and enthusiastic interest. Aside from the fact that singing is good and healthful for our little ones, it will undoubtedly be found that they themselves will like to sing these songs, and it would be difficult to imagine a prettier picture than one or more sturdy youngsters singing them.

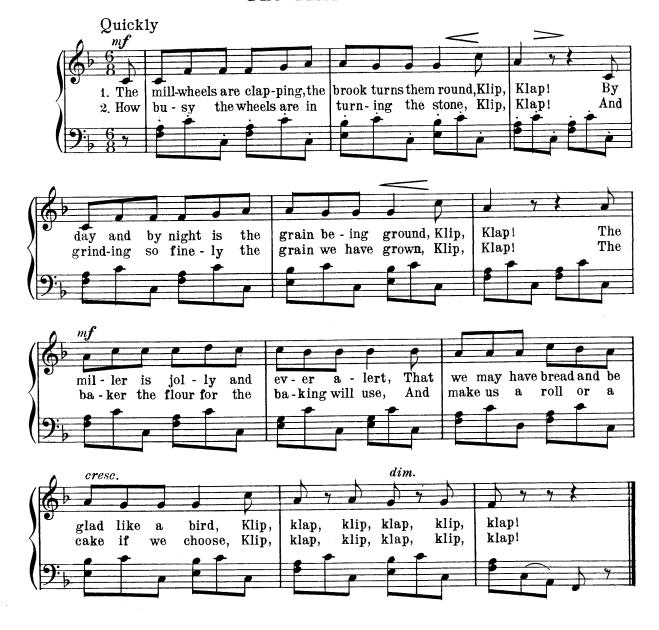

Note: This makes a charming duet for a little boy and a little girl in Quaker costume.

SONGS OF CHRISTMAS

Of all the year's holidays, Christmas is undoubtedly the dearest and most eagerly looked forward to by every child. The advent of Christmastide brings forth their finest feelings and emotions—the pleasure of giving and of receiving; the joy of wishing and being wished all of the good—things which life can give us. So it is that this section of our book contains joyous songs in the form of Christmas carols, Yuletide hymns and songs celebrating each festive incident of this greatest of days. For little ones to sing these songs is to instill in them a greater reverence and a deeper knowledge of the day's meaning.

A Christmas Carol

- 3. This new-born Babe to children brings,
 Ring merrily, bells, ding, dong!
 A message from the King of Kings,
 Ring merrily, bells, ding, dong!
 "Peace and Good-will, Good-will and Peace,"
 And on this earth may love increase!
 Ring merrily, bells, etc.
- 4. So in the future as the past,
 Ring merrily, bells, ding, dong!
 It will be, while this world shall last,
 Ring merrily, bells, ding, dong!
 That Christmas coming once a year,
 Brings peace, and love, and right good cheer!
 Ring merrily, bells, etc.

SONGS OF NATURE

It is not until the advanced stage of their school days that children imbibe any appreciable amount of knowledge regarding the forces of nature which are daily at work around them, and therefore the instruction which will come to them through this little group of nature songs, though worded in a fanciful way, cannot be other than helpful and elevating. There are songs of the stars, the sun, the winds, the snow, the moon and the trees, all with skillful lyrics which paint pretty word-pictures of these forces of nature which do their appointed tasks silently but surely each day.

SONGS OF OUR COUNTRY

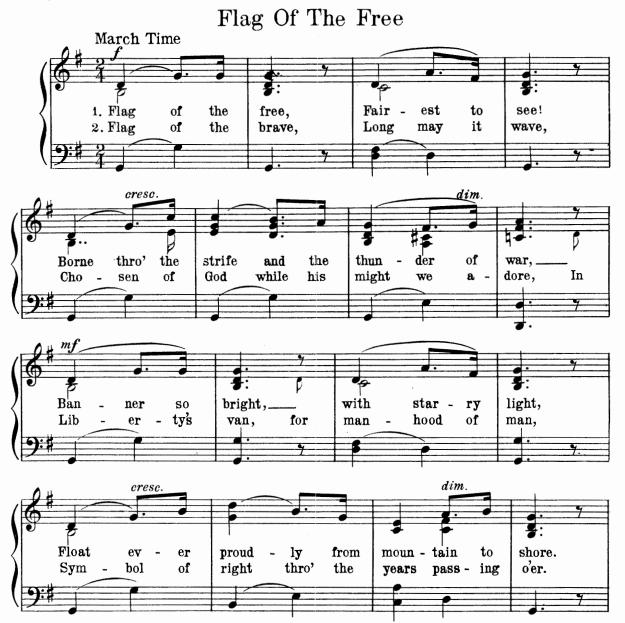

Sir Walter Scott might have penned his wonderful lines in this way:

"Breathes there a child with soul so dead

Who never to himself has said

"This is my own, my native land"!"

This is the sentiment that every child in this great land of ours should have thoroughly inculcated in his mind and our stirring patriotic songs many of them written in the very stress and turmoil of war itself- are the best means of stirring up patriotism. The most inspiring sight in the world is an assemblage of children singing "The Star Spangled Banner" or in fact anyone of the songs in this book stamped with the seal of patriotism.

3. And where is that band who so vauntingly swore, 4.0h! thus be it ever, when freemen shall stand, 'Mid the havoc of war and the battle's confusion, A home and a country they'd leave us no more! Their blood has wash'd out their foul footstep's pollution:

No refuge could save the hireling and slave, From the terror of flight or the gloom of the grave.

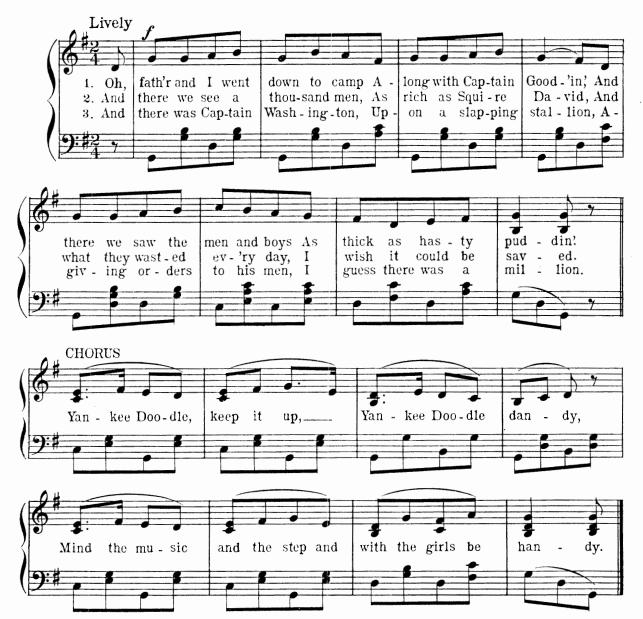

Between their lov'd homes and the war's desolation, Blest with vict'ry and peace, may the heav'n rescued land,

Praise the pow'r that hath made and preserved us a nation;

Then conquer we must, for our cause it is just, And this be our motto, "In God is our trust!"

Yankee Doodle

- And then the feathers on his hat,
 They look'd so very fine, ah!
 I wanted peskily to get,
 To give to my Jemina.
- And there I see a swamping gun,
 Large as a log of maple,
 Upon a mighty little cart,
 A load for father's cattle.
- 6. And ev'ry time they fired it off,
 It took a horn of powder,
 It made a noise like father's gun,
 Only a nation louder.
- 7. And there I see a little keg,
 Its head all made of leather,
 They knock'd up on't with little sticks,
 To call the folks together.

FOLK SONGS

The folksongs of a nation are by far the most important of its musical writings, because they contain the melodies which are the people's choice, wedded to poems whose sentiments strike deepest into their hearts and sensibilities. Every child should be made acquainted with some of these songs, of which only a few of the most representative are presented here. The sentiments of folksongs are always of the purest character, and as such they are never to be classed with the "popular" songs of the day. This type of song survives only for the moment, but the folksongs of a nation live in the hearts of the people from generation to generation.

- 4. Suppose, and suppose
 That your Highland lad should die?
 Suppose, and suppose
 That your Highland lad should die?
 The bagpipes shall play o'er him,
 And I'd lay me down and cry,
 And it's oh! in my heart,
 That I wish he may not die.

NURSERY RHYMES AND SONGS

Of all the songs of childhood which we may hear again later in life, the nursery rhymes and jingles are most fraught with pleasant recollections, for they revive the days when a loving mother taught them to us _ magic days when "Little Jack Horner" and "Little Miss Muffit" were real live beings in our minds. Among the more than three-score songs in this section of "Songs the Children Love to Sing" will be found everyone's favorite jingles, the entire series including something from the childlore of almost every country.
