Five Vocal Symphonies to fit between Six Motets by Don Carlo Gesualdo

In a letter to Gesualdo of 10 December 1592 the poet Torquato Tasso (1544-95) wrote that he had sent over 40 texts for Gesualdo's sole use in madrigals, following the composer's specific requirements. Six days later he sent another five sonnets. Although they were great friends, Gesualdo set only a few of these texts. The friendship abruptly stopped when Tasso produced two poems which seemed to side with the murdered couple.

Malcolm Hill divided each of two Tasso sonnets In Morte di due Nobilissimi Amanti and Sullo Stresso Argomento in two, to give the freely-translated text for four vocal symphonies to be sung between the first five Gesualdo motets. While the motets should be performed unaccompanied, the vocal lines of the symphonies are accompanied by either chamber organ or three viols.

Gesualdo : Deus refugium

This motet is scored for SATTB, and although individual lines follow the rules, Gesualdo makes play with modulations at the word pietatis.

Deus refugium et virtus adesto piis Ecclesiae precibus auctor ipse pietatis et praesta ut quod fideliter petimus efficaciter consequamur.

O God, our refuge and strength, who art the author of mercy, hearken to the pious prayers of thy church, and grant that what we ask with faith, we may effectually obtain.

Solo vocal symphony : Weep, O Graces

Weep, O Graces, and lament, O Loves, the harsh awards of death and the cruel rewards of the beautiful couple whom death takes from us so grudgingly, both the funeral spectacle and the ghostly horrors. Weep, O Nymphs, and cast flowers on this couple, their moist leaves painted with time-worn laments, and all of you who compete with each other in distilling the wreathed anguish and the odour of tears. Weep.

Gesualdo : Reminiscere miserationum

Duo vocal symphony : Weep, Erato

Gesualdo : Ave, dulcissima Maria [SATTB]

Solo vocal symphony : O souls

Gesualdo : Gaudeamus omnes

Solo vocal symphony : Let whoever blames you

Gesualdo : Peccantem me

Solo vocal symphony : Nobles are exempt

Gesualdo : Ave sanctissima [SSATTB]

Weep, O Graces
