THE COOPER O' FIFE.

Old Lowland Ballad.

Old Lowland air arranged by

MALCOLM LAWSON.

PIANO. f Rather fast, but following the singer.

The piano introduction consists of two staves in G minor (three flats). The right hand plays a melody of eighth and sixteenth notes, while the left hand provides a harmonic accompaniment with chords and single notes. The tempo and dynamics are marked as 'f' (forte) and 'Rather fast, but following the singer.'

With humour. Coro: f

1. There was a wee coop-er, who liv'd in Fife, * Nick - e - ty, nack - e - ty,

The first system of the song features a vocal line and a piano accompaniment. The vocal line begins with a melody in G minor, marked 'With humour.' and 'Coro:'. The piano accompaniment starts with a chordal texture, marked 'p' (piano) and 'f' (forte). The lyrics are '1. There was a wee coop-er, who liv'd in Fife, * Nick - e - ty, nack - e - ty,'.

Solo.

noo, noo, noo, And he has got - ten a gen - tle wife;

The second system of the song continues the vocal and piano parts. The vocal line has a solo section marked 'Solo.' with the lyrics 'noo, noo, noo, And he has got - ten a gen - tle wife;'. The piano accompaniment continues with a similar texture, marked 'p' (piano).

Coro: f

Hey Wil - lie wal - la - chy! Now John Dou - gal a - lane, Quo rush - e - ty in time.

The third system of the song features a chorus section marked 'Coro:'. The vocal line has a melody in G minor, marked 'f' (forte). The piano accompaniment continues with a similar texture, marked 'f' (forte). The lyrics are 'Hey Wil - lie wal - la - chy! Now John Dou - gal a - lane, Quo rush - e - ty in time.'

* This chorus is often sung in the "Kingdom of Fife" to the accompaniment of one stroke of the elbow on a wooden table, followed by two of the fist—which will be found to be a very good imitation of the noise made by the movement of the shuttle in weaving. Perhaps, with this assistance, the uninitiated will find some elucidation of the meaning of the refrain.

THE BONNIE WEE ROSE.

A WA' in the woods, the bonnie green woods,
That grow on the haughs of Glenlair,
There grows a wee rose, a bonnie wee rose,
On a stem so stately and fair.

I've tended that flow'r, that sweet bonnie flow'r,
As miser gloats over his gold ;
And at morn, and at night, wi' fondest delight
I've watched all its beauties unfold.

In prettier bow'rs, far gaudier flow'rs
May bloom for the lordly to see ;
But my bonnie wee rose, at eve's dewy close,
Keeps all her sweet fragrance for me.

Ere winter's cauld frost the woodland hath cross'd,
To kill the wee flow'r with its smart,
I will pluck the wee rose, the bonnie wee rose,
And wear it aye close to my heart.

The musical score is written for voice and piano. The key signature has two flats (B-flat and E-flat), and the time signature is 3/4. The tempo is marked 'Rather slow and with great feeling' with a quarter note equal to 60 beats. The piano part begins with a piano (p) dynamic. The score includes several dynamic markings: piano (p), crescendo (cres.), fortissimo (f), and piano-pianissimo (pp). The lyrics are in French, expressing a farewell to France and a poignant memory of childhood. The music is characterized by a noble sadness, as indicated by the instruction 'Avec une noble tristesse.'

(CARDING SONG.)

TARRY woo', O tarry woo' !
Tarry woo' is ill to spin ;
Card it well, card it well,
Card it well ere ye begin.
When it's carded, row'd and spun,
Then the work is halfins done ;
But when woven, dressed and clean,
It may be cleadin' for a queen.

Sing, my bonnie, harmless sheep,
That feed upon the mountain steep,
Bleating sweetly as we go
Through the winter's frost and snow.
Up, ye shepherds, dance and skip,
O'er the hills and valley trip ;
Sing the praise of tarry woo',
Sing the flocks that bear it too.

Happy is the shepherd's life,
Far frae courts and free of strife,
While the gimmers bleat and bae,
And the lambkins answer mae ;
No such music to his ear !
Thief or fox he does not fear,
Sturdy kent or collie true
Well defend the tarry woo'.

Who'd be king, can ony tell,
When a shepherd sings sae well ?
Sings sae well, and pays his due
With honest heart and tarry woo'.
Tarry woo', O tarry woo' !
Tarry woo' is ill to spin,
But when woven, dress'd and clean,
It may be cleadin' for a queen.

JOHN THE BRAGGART.

(BREIGEIN BINNEACH.)

I WENT away with breigein binneach
And Macgregor Clairry;
He boasted of his splendid house,
His kitchen and his dairy.
Inn ala oroi,
O inn ala la !

But not a house or hall saw I,
Save, on the hillside airy,
A little bothy, where he lived
With his sister Mary.
Inn ala oroi, &c.

He has got but one dun cow,
Though he bragged so rarely;
It hardly gives enough of milk
For himself and Mary.
Inn ala oroi, &c.

Oh ! Bold is John the braggart's tongue,
Of lies he's never chary;
His fame will spread from Mull to Coll,
From Skye to Inverary.
Inn ala oroi, &c.

Till when he dies, the Prince of lies
Says, " John, you've beat me fairly;
The half my place I yield to you,
The half to sister Mary."
Inn ala oroi, &c.

GLENALBIN, native soil, from thee
Thy sons are torn to-day ;

Glenmoriston, Glentarff, Glendoe,
Loved haunts of youth, farewell ;
The exile's tears like rain must flow
Your very names to tell.

Farewell to Knockie's rock-bound crest,
Farewell the fateful yew,
Where, gathering at their chief's behest,
Their swords our fathers drew.

That roused the loyal glen ;
Dim shadows now our crown and king,
A remnant small our men.

LORD REOCH'S DAUGHTER.

ROW weel, my boatie, row weel,
Row weel, my merry men a',
For there's dool and there's wae in Glenfiorich's bowers,
And there's grief in my father's ha'.
And the skiff it danced light on the merry wee waves,
And it flew o'er the water so blue;
And the wind it blew light, and the moon it shone bright,
But the boatie ne'er reached Allandhu!
Ohon for fair Ellen, ohon!
Ohon for the pride of Strathcoe!
In the deep, deep sea, in the salt, salt bree,
Lord Reoch, thy Ellen lies low.

Row weel, my boatie, row weel,
Row weel, my merry men a',
For there's dool and there's wae in Glenfiorich's bowers,
And there grief in Lord Reoch's ha'.
And each summer night when the wind it blows light,
And the moon sparkles over the main,
There's a father that mourns for fair Ellen that fled,
And a lover that waits her in vain.
Ohon for fair Ellen, ohon!
Ohon for the pride of Strathcoe!
In the deep, deep sea, in the salt, salt bree,
Lord Reoch, thy Ellen lies low.

HERDING SONG.

TWILIGHT is falling on bonnie Loch Leven,
Hill-tops are glowing in sunset red ;
Through the dim valley a lassie comes liting,
Calling her cows to come home to the shed.
“Come, come hither, darkness is falling,”
“Shadows gather round the ben ;”
“Come, my dearies, come to my calling,”
“Home to the sheiling in the glen.”

Oh ! For a sight of my bonnie Loch Leven,
Oh ! For one hour on the heathery brae ;
Oh ! For to hear the sweet voice of my darling,
Calling her cattle at close of day !
“Come, come hither,” &c.

Sad is my heart, and my limbs are aweary,
Far is my home o'er the great rolling sea ;
Years have gone by since I left my ain dearie,
But still in the twilight her song comes to me.
“Come, come hither,” &c.

CORONACH.

(Being the lament for the death of a child chieftain, the last of his race.)

THE eaglet is torn from his nest in the rock,
The bud by the black frost is bitten ;
For dead is young Ronald, the flower of the flock,
In his boyhood and innocence smitten.
Leave the ewes in the bucht, leave the calves in the byre,
Let the cows go un milked till the morrow,
Bind the child in the cot, set the sick by the fire ;
Come forth on our journey of sorrow.
Bear him out from the halls where the tapers burn low,
Where the dawn threatens murky and chilly ;
The leaves fade and fall on our path as we go,
Through the forest the wind whistles shrilly.
Youth's promise we mourn who are old and grown grey,
Like winter lost summer bewailing ;
Yet what will remain but the cairns on our way,
And our tribute of tears unavailing ?
Alas ! For the race of the noble, the strong,
That ne'er bred a doitard or craven,
Whose friends found an open door, feasting, and song,
Whose foes were the food of the raven !
But the shepherd lies low, and the sheep cry aloud,
The wolf may exult without danger ;
His home is the tomb and his garb is the shroud,
His pastures must pass to the stranger.
Lay above him his plaid and the badge of his clan,
And bonnet with true eagle's feather,
On yon tender bosom, that breathed but a span,
Lay a wreath of the virgin white heather.
One quaff from the quaich let us drink to the dead,
As we'd drink at betrothal, or wedding ;
Though cold is the bride that our Ronald hath wed,
And grim for the bridegroom the bedding.
Then fold, little chieftain, those lily-white hands
That ne'er struck at foeman nor quarry,
Where the hill of thy fathers a sentinel stands
Over green strath and clachan and corrie.
Lie silent, and dream by the clear-singing stream
The dream that no care can encumber,
A flower of delight in the garden of night,
For ever and ever to slumber.

*Ochan, ochan, ochan eh !
Sugh mo chree, mo leanaban Heh !
Ochan, ochan, ochan eh !
Cadil, cadil gu brath.*

Daughters of Morven's wood-clad realm ;
Blue-eyed Malvina, brightly smile,
Ere tears thy sunny thoughts o'erwhelm.
Let Fate prevail !

Yet weep not long ; your light renew,
Ye stars that shine in Selma's hall ;
More meet the warriors grave to strew
Than scorn alive the alien's thrall.
Then Death all hail !

Ancestral shades, shall Oscar fear,
When foeman throng in frantic fight ?
The clanging shield, the hurtling spear,
With wonted joys his heart delight.
Let Fate prevail !

If fall I must by treachery,
Come, sword, my last brave banquet share ;
A score shall bear me company
Where shuddering souls in exile fare
Then Death all hail !

HAROLD BOULTON.
